EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

DYNAMITE and die you may.

BOTH parties are encouraged by recent elections.

PRESIDENTIAL prospects are fast fading from the vision of Butler's one eye.

CENTRE COUNTY, as well as the U. S. is engaged in the debt-paying business.

THE record of deaths of distinguished people for 1883 up to this time is very large.

THAT bruise on the Queen's knee is giving her Majesty more trouble than was expected.

DYNAMITE and statesmanship are having a pretty tight race in Europe and at last accounts dynamite was clearly in the lead.

THE Tennessee legislature has just enacted a law which forbids the sale of liquor to drunken husbands without the consent of their wives.

PETER COOPER and William E. Dodge were the two greatest and most magnanimous spirits that have passed away during this year.

MRS. ELLA K. TRADER, who spent $100,000 of her own money in aiding the wounded soldiers during the war, now lives in poverty at Ashville, N. C.

WILLIAM SPRAGUE was defeated for Governor of Rhode Island, the Republican candidate, Bourn, being elected by a majority of over 2,000. This casts a damper upon Butler's aspirations for the Presidency.

COLUMBIA College, New York, is deeply in debt and four million dollars is needed to equip it as it ought to be equipped. New Yorkers have plenty of money and there should be no difficulty in raising this amount.

STAR ROUTE Lawyer Merrick declares that Dorsey has already convicted himself. The jury hasn't, however, and for that reason it is desirable that Mr. Merrick pay strict attention to business until a verdict is rendered.

PAPERS were issued at Albany on Wednesday, organizing a telephone company with a capital of ten millions. The company will carry on business throughout the United States, and enable a person to converse with a friend in any part of the country.

THE Passion Play continues to meet with opposition. It is strange that Salmi Morse cannot content himself with the legitimate drama instead of putting upon the stage scenes which are too sacred to be represented for amusement, or, what is still worse, for 50 cents or $1 a head.

THE Langtry family over in England sent one of the sisters here to watch the handsome wife who came over to get good American money as an actress. The Miss Langtry had been here but a short time before a young American struck the trail, ran her down, and married her. If there are any more of the Langtrys they should be sent over.

ONE would think that the building business must be unusually brisk and profitable in Chicago just now, judging from the fact that the bricklayers there have just succeeded in getting their wages advanced to $4 and $4.50 a day. This is pretty good pay for work which does not involve any very severe strain on the intellectual faculties, and the number of persons in the so-called genteel employments, such as clerking and book-keeping, who will read this piece of news with a feeling of envy is large.

Demoralized Democrats.

Demoralization and Democracy are euphonious words and were originally designed to be associated. The Harrisburg Telegraph shows their identity of significance by delivering the following lecture to the Democrats:

The Democratic brethren cannot live in harmony. A little temporary success has turned their heads. Watterson tells Pennsylvania Democrats to go to the satanic realms, and they respond that the party would be well rid of Kentucky blue grass bourbonism and Bourbons. The Speakership fight, now excited and bitter, promises to intensify as the time for the next meeting of Congress approaches. The party is split to fragments on the tariff question, the Democrats of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana wanting to let it alone until they get control of all branches of the Government, while the Coxes, Springers and Wattersons want to tear it to pieces forthwith. On the question of public expenditures the Bourbons are as much at variance among themselves, Randall, Holman and a few more carrying the matter of economy into parsimony and cheeseparing, while the "gentlemen from the South, sah," want big appropriations in order to compensate them for losses sustained by war when in a state of armed rebellion. Although the currency question is not now prominently before the people, it needs only to come up to show the irreconcilable difference between the Eastern and Western Democrats on the subject. Altogether the Bourbons of the country at large are in unity upon no important issue, except that they all go in for free whiskey. But however widely apart the heterogeneous elements of a great National opposition party may stand, it certainly ought to be expected that the reform Democrats of Pennsylvania should stand shoulder to shoulder in solid phalanx. One would naturally suppose that the youthful Governor, coming as he does from the narrow field of the counting room to his great office would call about him, for consultation and advice, all the older and wiser heads of his party. But he does nothing of the sort. His frigid indifference toward the party leaders disgusted them before he had finished his walk through the slush to the capitol on inauguration day. Coxe, who said in the convention after the nomination of Pattison, that he "knew how to carry elections" and was as good as his word, was not consulted about any affairs of politics or State. Wallace, who had gone about the State during the campaign sounding the praises of the young candidate, was left to the chill blasts of winter outside of the Executive Department or the Governor's mansion. The young Gordon was about the only man let into the confidence or the counsels of the youthful Pattison, and between them thus far they have had things pretty much their own way and have made the usual blunders incident to youth and inexperience. But Senator Coxe, being a strong party man, and seeing that everything was at loose ends with the boy Governor, a few days ago called to make a few suggestions about a matter in which he was interested. In short, he wanted to indicate some gentlemen who would make suitable and efficient members of the committee to overhaul the manner of keeping accounts in the Departments. He had no sooner made known his purpose than the Governor waved him aside sternly, and informed him that he needed no counsel upon the subject, and that he would fill the places without any suggestions. Coxe went away in a huff, and now the democrats threaten to reject whatever nominations he may send to the Senate. With Cassidy and Wallace watching each other like tigers, Coxe and the Governor fighting, and Col. McClure picking out all the flaws he can find in the administration, the Democrats are in about as bad shape with their local and State affairs as they are with National questions.

A Step in Civil Service Reform.

It is a poor rule that will not work both ways, says the Philadelphia North American, and the principle of civil service reform which is in the main so beneficial to the office holders is to some extent being applied to the administration of the departments in a manner which does not at all meet with their approval. The trouble arises from the fact that an attempt is now being made in some quarters to conduct the multifarious business of the government upon business principles. The Secretary of the Treasury in particular has been making a strenuous effort to eradicate the various petty abuses which have sprung up during a long period of official laxity and indifference. He has disagreeably surprised the clerks employed in his department by insisting upon the performance of a fair day's work as a condition precedent to the payment of a fair day's wages. In pursuance of this object he has subjected the course of proceedings to an inconvenient degree or scrutiny, and as a result of his investigations, the Treasury employes nave been deprived of many pleasant little privileges, to which they had come to consider themselves rightfully entitled.

The same thing has been done in some of the other departments, and Public Printer Rounds has just provoked a storm of indignant denunciation by substituting in certain cases payment by the piece for fixed weekly salaries These innovations have caused a great shaking among the dry bones, and the army of government clerks at Washington are buzzing like a swarm of bees with which some intruder has interfered. Their protests will not elicit much sympathy from the general public. Every one knows that as a rule the persons employed in the civil service of the United States are not proper objects for consideration. On the contrary, they are very comfortably situated. They do less work and are paid for it at a more liberal rate of compensation than any other class of workers in the community. Not many of them would be able to command anything like the salaries they receive if they were relegated to the private walks of life, and even those who might be able to earn in other employments as much money as the government pays them, would have to work a great deal harder for their pay. The public is well aware of all this, and it will not have much patience with the complaints of those who think they have a serious grievance because they are required to remain at their desks until five o'clock in the afternoon, or because their days of absence from whatever cause are deducted from the month's holiday which their liberal employer allows them in each and every year.

On the contrary, the movement to hold the government clerks to a stricter accountability will command the hearty approval of the public. It is, indeed, a legitimate and logical concomitant of the new principle upon which the civil service is hereafter to be regulated. When public offices were distributed as rewards for party service, those who secured them had some excuse for acting upon the theory that their places were private property, to whose revenues they had obtained an absolute and individual right. But this, according to the new system, is an untenable theory, and the man who secures an appointment upon the grounds of his fitness for the place must be prepared to discharge his duties in the same spirit as a clerk or bookkeeper in the private office of a merchant or storekeeper. The more closely the civil service is approximated to private employment, the better the public will be pleased and the more efficiently and economically it will be served.

Peter Cooper's Death.

It was true of Peter Cooper, says, the Philadelphia Press, as it is of a score of the mighty dead and living, that their share in the sweep of a race which has made a continent its own in the span of a single life, that their industrial achievements have won success which elsewhere only the chance of military life offers. Elsewhere, and in other generations it has only been by the sharp and sudden work of the sword that a man has been able visibly to change the daily life of millions by his personal share in the events of a lifetime. But of the captains of industry in this great nation, which have made peace greater than war, we know and feel that their lives have turned the course of men as the rivers of waters are turned. To make the first locomotive successfully built on American soil; to establish here the first great rolling mill, whose trains of rolls marked for this land the dividing line between the iron of Tubal Cain and the iron of Nasmyth; to bear an equal part in the first railroad that crossed the Alleghanies and the first cable that threaded the Atlantic; for seventy years to be so near the pulse of industry that every protective tariff meant profit, and every fall in duties loss; to share through this century the wide work of a nation, by skill, prudence, and blameless porposes, attaining wealth without exciting envy;—these are all in themselves remarkable; but they stir the blood like a trumpet first and chiefly because favoring conditions have made our material development more wonderful than the deeds of war.

To all this Peter Cooper added more. Surpassed in the mere magnitude of his beneficent donations by others, he laid the foundations of Cooper Institute so early, and so sedulously cared for its usefulness, that he stood before the public as the representative of that modern spirit which accepts wealth as a trust, and makes the care and service of others in this life the first of earthly duties. He early set the habit of benevolence and his work created the public opinion which challenges any great material success whose fruits are not tithed for the general good. It was much to have founded a school in which bread winning was yearly made easier for thousands; but it was more to have founded an example which makes giving easier for other millions. And to him his work brought an exceeding rich reward. Abroad he would have become Sir Peter Cooper, and some title would perchance, have smirched the plain name he had won. Here for thirty years, he lived in a great city, and felt its conscious love. He could neither enter a great audience, nor pass through its crowded streets without feeling about him sign and proof of affectionate admiration. Age came to him, wearying years passed over his head, but the great institute he had founded for others continued to be for himself the object of an affectionate care, which robbed age of tedium and filled the years with interest. For himself, for the hap and behoof of his own life, no investment ever proved of richer value than the endowment of Cooper Institute.

THE accuracy with which the accounts of the treasurer of the United States are kept is as remarkable as it is satisfactory. As a result of the examination which was made upon the retirement of Mr. Gilfillan and the induction of his successor, it has been ascertained that the cash balances to a cent. This speaks very well for the system in operation at the Treasurer's office, and for the efficiency and fidelity with which the employes discharge their duties. Our civil service has been subjected to a great deal of adverse criticism for one reason and another, but after all the work of the government is for the most part notably well done.

THE Philadelphia Times calls attention to the fact that India has already lowered the price of grain in the world's markets and cut off from 10 to 20 per cent, at least, of the profits of the Western farmer. Wheat sells in the interior for eighteen cents a bushel, about one-third to one-fourth the cost of raising it in Dakota, and high freight charges to the sea-coast are all that prevent this grain from hopelessly underselling ours, as water carriage is only six or eight cents a bushel more from Calcutta than New York. As India has 20,000,000 acres on which wheat is grown—a surface one half as large as that now seeded in this country—yielding 240,000,000 bushels and as much more which can be be put under the plow, all the needs of England can be supplied by her. All that is needed is English capital to build railroads. It is not surprising, under these circumstances, that a government loan of $250,000,000 for this purpose is strongly urged in India and England as the simplest and most direct way of making England independent of any other power for its food supply. Such a change would work as sudden changes in our domestic agriculture as the development of steam and machinery in England did in our domestic manufactures forty years ago.

LAST Tuesday's discoveries in London, Birmingham and Liverpool indicate that the British Government has as much work on its hands as the Russian. The dynamite conspirators have set to work with startling method, and the whole British population will have to turn detective to assure the safety of the various centres of revolutionary activity. The laboratory unearthed at Birmingham is a departure from previous inventions of the sanguinary plotters. Its manipulator seems to be an educated chemist, who not only understands the fabrication of explosives, but various ingenious contrivances for obliterating all evidences of the preparation of them. Whitehead, the chemist, is evidently an American; a man of education, and consequently much more redoubtable than the clumsy artificers of the destruction hitherto attempted.

THE white population of Arizona will be relieved to learn that General Crook proposes to turn his attention to the Indians who have been causing so much trouble and doing so much damage in that part of the country. If there is any man who can reduce refractory Indians to a proper state of subordination in the shortest possible time and with the least loss of life or property, that man's name is Crook. He is the ablest and most experienced Indian fighter in the army, and he will make short work of the belligerent braves in Arizona, who seem to be spoiling for a fight.

THE Nicholson congressional apportionment bill has passed the House at Harrisburg by a strict party vote. It is a rank Democratic measure and will of course be killed in the Senate.

EX-GOVERNOR HENRY M. HOYT has been admitted to practice law in the courts of Philadelphia county, and has gone into partnership with John Marshall Gest.

BOTH houses of the Ohio Legislature have passed a resolution for a Constitutional temperance amendment to be submitted to the voters at October election.

THE press of the country, of all shades of opinion, give Postmaster General Gresham a cordial send-off.

PORTLAND, Oregon, charges $800 for a liquor license. Result—idle policemen and an empty jail.

THE new Postmaster General, Judge Gresham, is fifty-one years of age and an old soldier.

THE intemperate use of intoxcating liquors in the United Kingdom is on the decline.

The officers of the government steamer Lily, which arrived at Cairo on Monday, the 2d inst., after a trip down the Ohio river distributing relief to sufferers by the late flood on that stream, say that one million dollars would not cover the loss sustained by the overflow between Louisville and Cairo.

Edward Dunphy was acquitted in New York on Monday of last week of a charge of attempting suicide. He stated to the court that he was an Irish actor, and had merely done this in order to get out of a cold, damp cell into a more comfortable one, and he had no intention whatever of doing himself an injury but a favor.

Poetry.

ON THE SEA SHORE.

A story in verse by the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman."

"The light waves kiss the shifting sands,
The deep seas kiss the sky:
Oh, kiss me once, my only love,
And then good-bye—good-bye!"

He kissed her upon the cheek and chin,
And on her brow so mild;
But when he kissed her on the mouth
Each wept like wounded child.

"Oh, I'll go east and I'll go west,
Far over land and sea,
But never will my heart find rest
Until it rests with thee."

"And I'll sit here from year to year,
Till my life's stream runs dry;
But never a face shall thine replace—
My only love, good-bye!"

He wandered east, he wondered west,
He won gold, lands and fame,
A gray head and a weary heart—
Then back to the old home came.

The light waves kissed the shifting sands,
And sang the self-same song:
"I wonder where's the silly lass
I liked when I was young?"

He found her at her cottage door,
She smiled the same sott smile;
But when he talked of years to come
She shut her eyes the while.

He kissed her on the cheek and chin,
(They lie, saying love grows old!);
But when he kissed her on the mouth
He shivered at the cold.

He clasped her to his lonely breast,
Besides the sunny sea;
He spoke a hundred passionate words,
But never a word spake she.

He loosed her from his longing arms,
That empty aye must be:
"I'll never in this world find rest
Till I rest in earth with thee."

—Good Words.

THE MASHER MASHED.

She lightly tripped down the street
With girlish loveliness replete,
A vision radiantly sweet.

He on the corner stood the while,
He wore a mellow melting smile;
He wore a last year's well brushed tile.

He gazed at her as she passed by,
He caught her lovely, beaming eye,
Her modest blushes mounted high.

She hurried on with quicker tread
Unto her side he fleetly sped—
"Your bundle's heavy, miss," he said.

Up the broad street her brother came—
Her spark of hope burst into flame—
She faintly murmured out his name.

* * * * * * *

Who is this dislocated youth,
With broken nose and absent tooth?
Some one has played with him, gadsooth!

Whence came he by those darkened eyes—
Those lumps and bumps of wondrous size
That on his curly pate uprise?

Some meteor on him must have crashed
To make him so supremely gashed—
What! No! It is!!! The masher mashed.

Our Story Teller.

Harry Hart's Experience.

BY MARY KYLE DALLAS.

He was good looking. Diana knew it. "Smart." Diana knew that too. She was both smart and good looking herself. So when he came to see her, and made himself agreeable, she did not pretend that she hated him. Indeed as the time went on, she made up her mind that a voyage down life's river in the same boat with Harry Hart would not be an unpleasant trip, and resolved to say "Yes" when he asked her to have him. He was so nice, thought Diana, one could do anything for him. One could be so proud of him too, the great, broad shouldered, brown-whiskered fellow, who knew so much. So her eyes glistened when they saw him coming; her whole face softened when he spoke to her; and her heart—ah! how soft that grew! Love makes one so tender, that it seems hard it will not stay with us forever.

In this case the rosy god lingered a whole summer through. Caleb Bloom knew this well enough; he also felt the influence of that "certain something" in Diana, which made her the sweetest of all women; but he was not good looking, and he had not any power over the girl's heart.

His pleasing task was to follow the couple about unseen, and envy Harry Hart from his very soul. As for Harry, he prudently refrained from saying anything to commit himself, made love in such a way as might be understood and not repeated; and finally, resolving that after all Diana was not rich enough for him, flitted away under pretense of a short visit to town, and vanished from Diana's vision. To say that she was not hurt would be to tell fibs.

If she only could have had warning, she might have told him that she hated him, and had that reflection to comfort her; but it was too late now. To all intents and purposes she had been jilted, and women always like to do the jilting themselves.

Harry had, meanwhile, disported himself in society, and felt that he had escaped the country girl's meshes just in time. His conscience accused him of having ill-used her, and he pictured her piming for him, with her hair in disorder and no bright bows on it. He rather dreaded the morning papers, lest he should read of her demise, even perhaps of her suicide, and he wished that it was possible for him not to make himself charming to every woman he met. "If I'd been such a fellow as Caleb Bloom, now," said Harry, throwing back his shoulders and looking into the glass, "why, I might have gone jogging on without anything to reproach myself with; but we don't make ourselves. I can't help being handsome, any more than I can help the women knowing it."

So he tucked Diana's photograph away in his desk, and tried to forget her. It is hard, however, to forget some people. Her face flitted before him too often for his peace. The notes of her voice returned to him like well-remembered music. Even while he courted Miss Guineagold, the heiress, he compared her with Diana who would have nothing for her dowry. And when Miss Guineagold refused him with scorn, after smiling on him and encouraging him for long months, he thought of the girl who had waited as he knew, to hear him say, "I love you," and who had never heard it.

He had not been in love with Miss Guineagold, however. So he recovered from the blow of her rejection easily, and went courting in another direction. This time Diana unconsciously revenged herself. His second flame was a widow rolling in riches, and of a jealous turn of mind. She being an inmate of the same hotel, saw him from the corridor, one day, vigorously kissing a photograph which he after hid in his desk. Being as unscrupulous as a jealous woman always is, she bribed a chambermaid to bring her the picture. It was Diana's. The widow, boiling with rage, at once cut her admirer dead.

It was Harry's hope to marry a rich woman, but he felt conscious that he might find a prettier and younger one, and so nothing dismayed, he set forth upon his search for a wife; wishing, with every new enamorata, that Diana had been rich, and bemoaning his hard fate that he could not afford to marry a poor girl.

However, the rich ones were skittish, had other fancies, did not appreciate Mr. Harry Hart; either gave him no opportunity to ask a Yes, or said No outright; and five years after he had jilted Diana he found himself still a bachelor, his estimation of his own charms greatly lessened by his bad luck in the matrimonial market, and the small competence which had been his own dwindling away to nothing.

Still Diana haunted him—a pale faded vision, with two hands clasped over a broken heart—and still he kissed her picture, and believed himself to have adored her, and to be the victim of a cruel fate.

He had come to such a state of pecuniary despair, however, that he was about to offer himself to the mistress of his boarding-house, who otherwise would soon have become troublesome in regard to her little bill, when, a rich old uncle dying without other heirs, saved him from the sacrifice. He became a joyful possessor of nearly half a million, and independent thenceforth of both landlady and heiresses.

For a while Mr. Harry Hart reveled in the knowledge of this fact, and satisfied himself with food and drink and much riding behind fast horses, in the most fashionable coats devisable by his tailor; but finally, even this palled, romance asserted her sway. Diana began to haunt him once more; and at last he came to the heroic resolution of going at once to her native village, and offering her his hand, his heart and his fortune. That she would accept them, he had no doubt. How could he? Women who loved once, loved forever, the poets had declared; and if Diana had not loved him, he had certainly tried to make her.

Therefore he packed his fascinating belongings, placed Diana's picture next his heart, and started for Tulipgrove by next morning's early train. He reached the village at noon. How familiar it looked! Nothing seemed to have changed. The old elm nodded a welcome. The old people sat upon their porches. The flowers in the garden might have been the same. And she—Diana—was she the same? Alas, her beauty might have faded, her broken heart might be visible in her eyes; she might even be dead!

"Oh, no," cried Harry, as this last thought entered his mind—"no; she must live for me." And as he spoke he found himself approaching the church. It was week-day, but it was full, or rather it was emptying itself of its fullness as fast as possible.

Something must have happened out of the usual order of things to occasion such an event. A wedding or a funeral only could fill Tulipgrove church on a week day. Suddenly a well remembered face flashed on him—Caleb Bloom's. He was struggling out of the crowd, dressed in his Sunday best, and looking about him for something. Harry collared him.

"Sir," cried Caleb—"Mr. Hart, I declare. How d'ye do?"

"Thank you," said Harry. "I'm very well; but I want to ask you—Diana—"

"Oh, she's there," said Caleb, pointing with his thumb, as Harry thought, toward the church-yard.

Harry staggered back.

"Not dead?" he cried.

"Dead!" cried Caleb. "Why, thank the Lord, no. Here she is. Diana, here's Mr. Hart."

Mr. Hart turned his head. There stood Diana as of old very plump and rosy, and holding in her arms a baby of some three weeks old in glorious white christening robes. She nodded and smiled after another sort upon Caleb.

"It's our second, Mr. Hart," she said, with matronly pride. 'Our first was named Caleb. You'll see him in a moment coming with his grandma. This is Diana—his pa would have it so. A boy and a girl we have now. Wouldn't you like to hold her a minute Mr. Hart? I don't believe she'll cry. She's as good as gold."

But Mr. Hart declined the pleasure, and returned to town by the next train.

A good woman is the loveliest flower that blooms under heaven.

The Danger of Kissing.

A reporter, conversing with a celebrated physician yesterday on the alarming condition of the death-rate in San Francisco and the prevalence of diphtheria, received some hints on the chief cause of infection, which, under existing circumstances, are almost remarkable. The physician in question is one whose reports on infectious diseases have gained him an European reputation, and who has paid special attention to the subject of diphtheria. He modestly requested that his name should not be given to the public if any use was made of his remarks. He said: "The impression that prevails that the neglected state of our sewers and streets is a prolific cause of the disease spoken of generally as zymotic is perfectly correct, but so many cases of diphtheria have come under my notice lately where the patients were surrounded by the utmost perfect sanitary conditions that I found it necessary to look beyond those causes for the origin of the infection. A little research showed me that the prime cause in all those cases was the same. All the patients were children or quite young girls, and I found that they had contrated the disease by kissing some infected schoolmate or playmate. I will give an instance to illustrate my remarks, and which will serve at the same time to illustrate the extreme danger children are subjected to by kissing their young companions. A little girl, daughter of wealthy parents, who almost worshiped her, for she was their only child, complained to her attendant a few mornings ago that she did not feel well, and did not wish to go to school. The nurse, a well meaning but ignorant person, failed to see anything serious the matter with the child, laughed at her complaint, and not desiring to trouble the mother took the child to school as usual. The child grew worse rapidly. The small red diphtheria spot in her throat, which any doctor would have noticed, had one been called in, but which carried no significance to the nurse, grew and enlarged rapidly, and before recess covered half of the back portion of the throat. The little one's teacher noticed that the child was really sick, and sent her home. Before she left the school, which I may add is an extremely well conducted private seminary, the child said goodby to her desk-mate and kissed her. The little girl who was kissed caught the disease. In the case of the first child the disease had spread so far when medical assistance was called in that she died, though had a doctor been called in earlier her life would probably have been saved. The second child was promptly treated and her life was saved.

"Another case that came to my notice bothered me for some time as to how the child caught the complaint, but at last I found out that her mother had allowed her to kiss the lips of a little companion who lay dead in a coffin, a victim of diphtheria. Understand me, I do not intend to convey the idea that I have discovered anything new. Every doctor could tell you the same thing, but I do not believe the general public know the danger of the promiscuous kissing indulged in by children. If they did, parents would stop their children from the habit, for in children it is nothing but a habit, and conveys no sense of affection or gratification. The teachers in the public schools would do well to caution their scholars against the habit. Taking a common-sense view of the case any one is instantly convinced of the danger of infection from a kiss. Diphtheria is a foreign growth in the throat. Infection is caused by particles of this growth coming in contact with a healthy surface. The saliva flows over the diseased spots and absorbs a portion of the minute spores. The habit of most people, especially children, is to moisten their lips with the tongue. The infected saliva is thus carried to the lips, and the contact of lips in kissing carries the disease from the sick to the healthy person. Nor is diphtheria the only form of infection that can be carried by a kiss. In the course of my practice I have come across cases of the most loathsome disease which the patient contracted by contact with the lips of a diseased person. I would not wish to create unnecessary alarm in the mind of any person, nor have I any desire to stop the osculatory enjoyment so dear to sweethearts and newly wedded folks. I do not suppose that such people would heed my warnings if they heard them, but I do say that for an unhealthy person to kiss another is a crime, and the habit of promiscuous kissing most dangerous from a sanitary point of view."—San Francisco Cor. Chicago Tribune.

"I see in this paper," said the fiend to the country editor as he clawed over a pile of exchanges, "that the business of one of the London journals fell off more than one hundred thousand dollars last year." "Merciful heavens!" exclaimed the provincial public minded moulder, blanching with sudden fear. "Dick!" yelling to the dusky "devil" who was running off the next issue, "Dick! print the balance of that run only on half sheets, and mail em to exchanges and deadheads I'll be hanged if I'm going to get left this year."

A man's business seriously affects his morals. If, for instance, a shoemaker takes unto himself two wives, and the legal question comes up as to which he shall support and which discard, is it not true that as a cobbler he ought to stick to the last?

The Wicked Little Girl.

"Ma's upstairs changing her dress," said the freckle-faced little girl, tying her doll's bonnet-strings and casting her eye about for a tidy large enough to serve as a shawl for that double-jointed young person.

"Oh, your mother needn't dress up for me," replied the female agent of the missionary society, taking a self satisfied view of herself in the mirror. "Run up and tell her to come down just as she is in her every day clothes, and not to stand on ceremony."

"Oh, but she hasn't got on her every-day clothes. Ma was all dressed up in her new brown silk 'cause she expected Miss Dimmond to-day. Miss Dimmond always comes over here to show off her nice things, and ma don't mean to get left. When ma saw you coming, she said, 'The Dickens!' and I guess she was mad about something. Ma said if you saw her new dress she'd have to hear all about the poor heathen, who don't have silk, and you'd ask her for money to buy hymn books to send 'em. Say do the nigger ladies use hymn book leaves to do their hair up on and make it frizzy? Ma says she guesses that's all the good the books do 'em, if they even get any books. I wish my doll was a heathen."

"Why, you wicked little girl! what do you want of a heathen doll? inquired the missionary, taking a mental inventory of the new things in the parlor to get material for a homily on worldly extravagance.

"So folks would send her lots of nice things to wear, and feel sorry to have her go about naked. Then she'd have hair to friz; and I want a doll with truly hair and eyes that roll up like Deacon Sliderback's when he says amen. I ain't a wicked girl, either, 'cause Uncle Dick—you know Uncle Dick, he's been out West, and swears awful and smokes in the house—he says I'm a holy terror and he hopes I'll be an angel pretty soon. Ma'll be down in a minute, so you needn't take your cloak off. She said she'd box my ears if I asked you to. Ma's putting on that old dress she had last year, 'cause she said she didn't want you to think she was able to give much this time, and she needed a new muff worse than the Queen of the Cannon Ball Islands needed religion. Uncle Dick says you ought to go to the islands 'cause you'd be safe there, and the natiffs'd be sorry they was such sinners anybody would send you to 'em. He says he never seen a heathen hungry enough to eat you, 'less 'twas a blind one, and you'd set a blind pagan's teeth on edge so he'd never hanker after any more missionary. Uncle Dick's awful funny, he makes pa and madie laughing sometimes."

"Your Uncle Richard is a bad, depraved wretch, and ought to have remained out West, where his style is appreciated. He sets a horrid example for little girls like you."

"Oh, I think he's nice. He showed me how to slide down the bannisters and he's teaching me to whistle when ma ain't round. That's a pretty cloak you've got, ain't it? Do you buy all your good clothes with missionary money? Ma says you do."

Just then the little girl's ma came into the parlor and kissed the missionary lady on the cheek and said she was delighted to see her, and they proceeded to have a real sociable chat. The little girl's ma can't understand why a person who professes to be so charitable as the missionary agent does should go right over to Miss Dimmond's and say ill-natured things as she did, and she thinks the missionary is a double-faced gossip.

Woman's Sacrifice for Beauty.

Speaking of the weakness of the gentler sex, I met my friend, the doctor yesterday, and as he and I stood and surveyed the passing show, a plump, fair woman passed by and I said to him: "What a charming complexion?" "Short lived, though, my dear boy," quoth he. I expressed surprise, for my charmer was young. "Arsenic," said he, calmly. Then it dawned upon me what he meant. Resuming, he said: "It's use is increasing. Women eat it in two forms; the white powder or arsenious acid, as the drug dealers have it and Fowler's solution, which the pharmacopœia says is a mixture with potash in a fluid form. Either way of taking arsenic produces the plumpness of face and beauty of complexion that you notice in yon fair lady. Its influence is principally on the capillary surface of the skin, which produces the plumpness. In plain English, water is the influence at work and in the end it shows itself. The skin assumes a watery transparency, which in turn gives way to ghastliness and whitening of the lips. That is the awakening from the blissful dream. Beauty vanishes and the end comes."

"How long can arsenic be used before it produces the ghastliness you speak of?" I asked my mentor.

"Six weeks' unbroken dosing will do the work well and effectually," answered he, "but woman is skillful, and using it a week she pauses, and before the effect of the cessation comes she takes another interval of arsenic dosing. Thus fate is held off. The end must come, however, and it comes all too soon for the arsenic eater. Some systems agree with the drug longer than others, but a few years of the periodical eating settles it. Verily was it said, 'Vanity, thy name is woman.'"

There is hardly an American who does not ache to become a champion of some sort. That's the why some men pound their wives and others get drunk. It's the only field in which they can shine.

The Subscriber's Address.

The carriers' address is legendary with every newspaper, but no one ever hears anything of the "subscriber's address." Why not? He has a side to his story, and is entitled to a hearing. When he gets it his address will read something as follows:

Say, you carrier boy, hold on a minute! This is New Year's day—the beginning of 1883. There are several new leaves I want you to turn over before the sun goes down to night. When you come spooking along here at five o'clock in the morning to leave my paper, I want you to remember that it is to be shoved through the opening in the side door. I have left word at the office about fifty times, but you insist on throwing it on the front step. If you persist in this persistency I'll make hash of you some fine morning!

There's another trifle I wish to refer to. Why on earth can't you come along here without trying to raise the dead? You are not hired to slam gates, stone dogs, chase cats, or whistle. You are not happy unless you wake up half your patrons, but I'm a patron who won't stand it any longer. The very next time you come along here with that infernal "Sally Walters," or whatever her cognomen is, I'm going to jump out of bed and take after you, and five minutes after I have got hold of your hair you'll take rank with the baldest baldhead in America.

And, by the way, how often are you going to skip me this year? Your excuses are altogether too thin. Don't try that on me this year! I'm kind-hearted and long-suffering, but there is a limit to all things. The very next time I miss my daily I'm going to hire a field-piece, load it to the muzzle with powder, nails, glass and broken stones, and tie you where you will get the full force of the discharge right between your eyes!

And you want to leave that dog of yours at home. I'm laying for that cur! When you can't set him on our cat you manage to meet some other carrier with a canine and get up a fight and raise a neighborhood hubbub. Oh! I've had my eye on you, young man, and you've got to step high for the next 365 days! Yes, I know it's cold, and you have to get up early, and it's a long and lonesome route, but you must also respect my feelings. Here's a dollar for you, and I want you to brace up and drop your mean little tricks. No reason why you shouldn't some day be President if you begin right. That's all, and when you want a new pair of mittens you know where to come for them.

The New Iron Process.

Pittsburg Dispatch.

As the problem of making iron direct from ore has baffled iron workers for half a century, the experiments so successfully prosecuted at Glenwood possessed decided interest. If the results attained are what is claimed by those who noticed the transformation of ore into muck bar in forty minutes, this means a good deal for the iron trade and therefore for Pittsburgh. A process which confers upon a remodeled puddling furnace the attributes of the blast furnace, is possessed of possibilities for which there is hardly a limit. The earlier experiments in this direction produced iron from ore, and rapidly too, but the product was unfit for use, betraying brittleness when heated and other fatal attributes. But if even a fair grade of iron can be produced in forty minutes from the time the ordinary ore is introduced into the furnace, the occupation of the puddler is doomed. The thousand and more puddling furnaces, the lofty blast furnaces of this city will be needed no longer, though the former, in a modified form, will exist as producers of the new, direct process iron. The fact that crude petroleum forms part of the fuel in the new furnace is not its least interesting feature.

A Young Man Who Believed in Prophecy.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Mr. Blackstrum told the reporter that seven years ago a fortune-teller in Sweden said to him: "Young man, you will leave your country very suddenly and travel to a strange land. Your life will be very intricate. After many ups and downs you will die a horrible death on your thirtieth birthday and your body will never be buried or recovered. Your life is safe until then." According to Mr. Blackstrum's statement, he unexpectedly sailed in the India for Australia, two weeks afterwards was wrecked on the "Goodwin Sands," and out of the 29 persons on board only the cook and himself were saved from a raft and conveyed to London. While there they got mixed up in a fight between Swedish and Danish sailors. During the melee a pistol was discharged, the ball grazing the bridge of his nose and killing his ill-fated companion instantaneously. He has since been shipwrecked six times and was once blown away with the mizzen royal yard in a gale at sea, and was then picked up. Mr. Blackstrum firmly believes that he will die as predicted on his thirtieth birthday July 1, 1888, and acts accordingly.

The 'Sweet Singer of the "Maumee' thus sings of the hog: "Oh the hog, the beautiful hog, curving his back as he watches the dog; defying the law for his bread and meat; roaming at large through every street; hunting, grunting, nosing around, till the open front gate is sure to be found—with its hinges broken and ruined quite, by the lovers who hung there on Sunday night; it won't stay shut; it won't hang level; so in walks the hog and raises the devil.

E. H. Snyder, Mt. Carmel, Pa., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me effectually of general debility and loss of appetite."

Matters at Milesburg.

Essington's axe works which have been in continuous activity for several months will cease operations temporarily to-day. Meanwhile the Green axe factory, now operated by Messrs. D. H. and B. G. Meek, will continue to turn out axes of unvarying excellence, and wood-choppers can go on with their work with the assurance that if their axe wears out they will be able to find a place to purchase a new one.

One of the most important "flittings" which Milesburg has witnessed was that of Mr. Abram McCollum's blacksmith establishment on Wednesday of last week, which was moved from its old location near Musser's property to a point near the railroad bridge. Mine Host Alois Kohlbecker, of the well known and popular Central City hotel, assisted in the arduous undertaking and was very useful.

Experience has demonstrated that the employe on the railroad does not always know as if by intuition the moment the train arrives at a bridge and death is often the result, as he does not lower his head quick enough to escape striking the frame-work of the structure. To avoid this the railroad company have adopted a simple experiment, consisting of cross-bars at the approaches to the entrance of either end of the bridge, the cross-bars having ropes dangling from them which are knotted on the lower end. These are placed in such a position as to strike the unwary trainhand and he instinctively lowers his head, thus escaping contact with the top of the structure as the train rushes through the bridge.

Stormstown or Half Moon?

We understand that the proper appellation for the place frequently called Halfmoon is Stormstown, though Half Moon is infinitely the prettier and more pleasantly suggestive name of the two. Why any one endowed with any sense of the proprieties of life should prefer Stormstown to Half Moon we fail to understand, yet we are told that the latter is the correct name. For any one to call a place Stormstown shows shocking bad taste, while to name it Half Moon evinces that they have a mind which is fond of dwelling on lovely instead of repulsive objects. Stormstown suggests a place of perpetual storms, and what family can live there without the constant fear that a storm will overwhelm them or that they will have a "tempest in a tea pot" within the circle of their own hearthstone? On the other hand Half Moon always suggests a clear sky, and fair sailing—a period of perfect equanimity and peace. No matter if storms actually do rage only think of Half Moon and you will have fair Luna and a million stars and perhaps the "milky way" also spreading a constant glory around your pathway. It would be a great improvement on the established order of things if the village in question could always be called after the lovely Half Moon which sails so triumphantly across the nocturnal sky.

Fishing for Rails.

Now that the fishing season has arrived in all its glory the employes of Valentines Ironworks organized a novel fishing expedition which they engaged in along Spring creek on Thursday. It was nothing more nor less than fishing for rails—the old rails which were laid on Valentines Spring creek bridge and which were washed away by the flood. This kind of fish wont bite voluntarily so Mr. George Miller waded into the creek and when he found a rail he would attach a rope to either end of it and four other men on the bank would pull it up. This proved to be exciting and entertaining sport to the crowd who gathered on the High street bridge and on the piazzas of the Bush House. Up to the time of writing four of these iron rail fish had been caught.

I. P. Dukehart,

Supt. of B. & O. R. R. Co.'s hotels, (Conductor on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for 28 years, and formerly a druggist), writes: "Cumberland, Md., Dec. 17, 1881: I have used but one bottle of Peruna between myself and son. He had Diphtheretic Sore Throat and is now well. As for myself, it has entirely relieved the dullness in my head, which has been of long standing—the result of Chronic malaria. I never took anything in my life that gave me such satisfaction. My wife is now taking it also." Ask your druggist for the "Ills of Life," and how to cure them—a book.

Medical.

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations are without. Hence, to cure the disease the Cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just principles. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

to vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

501 N. Fremont St., Baltimore

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago it brought on paralysis, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving.

HERE AT LAST.

After Long and Weary Waiting Relief is Brought to Those Who Need it.

"Well Pat," said an Orange county physician to a complaining Irishman some years ago, "for that pain in your chest you had better go home and put on a mustard plaster. I can't think this minute of anything better. And by the way," added the doctor turning to a friend, "I wish somebody would invent a real good plaster—something actually helpful for such cases as Pat's. May be they will sometime, when it is too late for me to use it."

When BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER was placed on the market about ten years ago the doctor's hope became a fact. Because of the rare medicinal virtues inherent in it, its rapid action and sure results, the Capcine is fast displacing the slow-acting plasters of former days, for all affections to which a plaster is applicable. Price, 25 cents. In the middle of the genuine is cut the word CAPCINE.

Brutality at Sea.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—Three libels against Albert T. Whittier, captain, and Benjamin H. Whittier, chief mate of the American bark Endeavor, were yesterday filed in the United States district court by Harry Vonwyngaarden, Peter Olsen and Thomas I. Douglas. The libels of the men set out they shipped aboard the Endeavor in New York on February 6, last, as ordinary seamen, for a voyage to Cardenas and return to a northern port. On the 23d of the month, while the vessel was on the high seas, a dispute arose between the master, mate and men as to the work the latter were to perform. The upshot of the controversy was that the three men were placed in irons and taken below, where they remained for half an hour. They were then brought on deck and by orders of the captain their arms were fastened and they were triced up above the deck so that their feet just touched the floor-deck with their toes. In order to relieve themselves they struggled to obtain a footing or to draw themselves up, but whenever on the verge of success it is alleged that the captain or mate forced or pried them back to their painful position. One of the men claimed to have been refused a drink of water and another to have been subjected several times to blows from the fist of the captain or mate. Douglass remained strung up for three-quarters of an hour, while the other men were kept from two hours to two and a-half. The men allege in their libels that they were all strained, hurt and bruised, and that the dispute between the officers and themselves was neither mutinous, disorderly nor dangerous to the interests of the vessel. The punishment inflicted upon them for the offence, if there was any, they say, was unusual and unnecessary, and they each ask damages in $250. During the day the captain and mate of the bark were arrested but were released upon entering stipulation for $500 each.

Three Vetoes by the Governor.

HARRISBURG, April 4.—"The Governor is vetoing the bills faster than we are passing them," remarked Speaker Faunce, as he pounded down three documents fresh from the executive department in the House this afternoon. The first was the veto of the Pittsburg Street Improvement bill, to which the Governor objected because it was special legislation, and would permit a majority in interest of the property holders to have a street paved instead of the majority in number. Another increased the pay of township assessors and assistant assessors from $1 to $2 per day, changing the law of 1834. His excellency remarked that the work would not be done any more thoroughly. There was no public demand for the change and the aggregate increase of cost would not be inconsiderable. The third provided for the equalization of valuations for school tax purposes in independent districts formed of parts of two or more counties. The reasons for vetoing it were that it was local and special; that it would create a special corps of officers and a new system of collection and auditing of accounts and needlessly interfere with the existing arrangements.

Powder and Dynamite.

LONDON, April 5.—A semi-weekly newspaper, called the City Press, in the edition published yesterday evening announced that it received a letter without a signature in which the writer threatened to blow up the government offices. The affair was reported to the police and last night the English detectives, assisted by members of the Irish secret service, arrested a man who had in his possession stuff supposed to be dynamite. The arrest created a decided sensation. The detectives had followed the prisoner from Manchester, as he appeared to be a suspicious character, and when the letter appeared he was at once arrested, being then in the vicinity of Fleet street.

Dynamite Doings.

LONDON, April 6.—The dynamite prisoners were arraigned at Bow street to-day, and charged with having in their possession, with felonious intent, explosive material. The detectives gave a full history of their chase after Norman, and gave a number of points which, in their opinion, pointed to his guilt, and to intimate relations between him and other prisoners. It transpired that the name of the man whom Norman alleges engaged him as clerk is Fletcher. The detectives deposed that on Norman's person was found a telegram signed Fletcher. At the conclusion of the testimony all the prisoners were remanded without bail, although their counsel strongly urged that bail be allowed.

CORK, April 6.—Carmody, O'Herliby and Featherstone, the men arrested on the charge of being dynamite carriers, had a re-examination today, which was conducted with the utmost privacy. They were further remanded for a week and bail was refused. Featherstone created some sensation by declaring that as for himself he was a citizen of the United States; that he had placed himself and his case in the hands of the United States consul here, and that he expected through that official redress for the indignity heaped upon him.

GLASGOW, April 6.—The statement is made here that the recent arrests at Liverpool have furnished the police with a clue to the cause of the recent explosions in Glasgow. According to the latest information on the subject it was intended that these explosions should be on a magnificent scale. The plot included the destruction of the viaduct over the canal. They were only partially successful. Several detectives have started from here for Liverpool to work out the evidence.

The Work of the Wind.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 6.—A severe wind, rain and hail storm prevailed in central and southwestern Kansas on Thursday night, doing considerable damage to buildings and fences and blowing down many trees. Along the line of the Hot Spring and Malvern railroad a cyclone developed and the force of the wind lifted a passenger coach from the track and sent it down an embankment. Several persons were injured, but none of them seriously. Two buildings were blown down at Alexander station, on the Iron Mountain railroad, north of Malvern. The effects of the storm were visible as far as Benton. Thursday night's tornado was especially destructive at Malet Vale, ten miles south of Little Rock, on the Iron Mountain railroad, a dozen residences and as many stables having blown down. The road in that neighborhood was so covered with fallen timber as to be impassable. No lives were lost.

Through the Ice to Death.

TROY, N. Y., April 5.—Yesterday afternoon Jennie Patton, aged 5 years, Edna Murphy, aged 6, and Lulu Hewitt, aged 8, were playing on the ice on Wild's pond, in Valatie. The little ones ventured to a spot where the ice was weak, and it giving way they were all precipitated into the chilling water. The Murphy girl fell first, and in her descent clutched the dress of Jennie Patton, dragging the latter in with her. The Hewitt child attempted to reach firmer ice, but was unsuccessful. The cries of the children attracted the attention of the neighbors, but they were too late to be of any use. The bodies of the children were recovered an hour after and were claimed by the frantic parents, who stood on the bank when the remains were brought to the surface. The Hewitt and Patton children were the daughters of prominent residents, while Edna Murphy was the only child of a worthy widow.

Murdered and Burned.

WELLSBORO, April 5.—Tuesday night a barn belonging to Nathan Austis, in Charleston township, about two miles east of this borough, was burned. The cause of the fire is unknown, but yesterday morning the remains of a human being were found among the ruins of the burned barn. Justice Brewster, of this borough, was notified. The testimony showed that the remains were those of Mrs. Martha Sylvia, a simple-minded grass widow who lived by herself about a mile from the burned barn. The jury found that the remains were those of Mrs. Sylvia, and that she was murdered and burned by some person unknown. Considerable evidence pointed to George Travis as the guilty person, and he was arrested yesterday and lodged in jail to await his examination.

Derelict Companies.

HARRISBURG, April 6.—Governor Pattison this evening issued a proclamation notifying all corporations and companies that have failed to make a return to the attorney general within three years as the law directs that at the expiration of thirty days from this date, unless in the meanwhile good cause to the contrary be shown, he will declare and proclaim their charters forfeited and their chartered privileges at an end. The list of these companies, of which there are nearly 800, is composed largely of defunct concerns, whose existence terminated long since, and whose names simply burden the public records.

Iowa's Prohibition Issue.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, April 4.—The rehearing of the Prohibition amendment test case was continued before the Supreme Court this morning, Judge Nourse finishing his argument that the court had no jurisdiction in the case. Senator Bills opened for the other side, and had not finished when the court adjourned. It is not likely that all the arguments will be in before Friday noon. The greatest interest is taken in the proceedings. The hall was densely crowded.

A Texas Horror.

GALVESTON, April 7.—A Sherman special says that at 3 o'clock this morning a telegram was received from Greenville, Texas, stating that the End hotel had fallen and was on fire. The inmates, fifteen in number, were buried in the ruins. An engine and assistance were sent immediately on a special train.

SHREVEPORT, Apr. 7.—The Standard's Greenville, Texas, special says the End hotel, a three story brick building, fell with a most terrific crash at midnight. Thirteen persons were crushed and buried in the ruins. Mrs. N. Pruitt, the proprietress; George Pruitt, Louis Albert jeweler; J. E. Ferd, telegraph repairer; T. D. Riley, conductor; R. R. Nail cotton buyer; Frank West, Miss Lou Davis, chambermaid; a mattress maker named Hill and negro waiters perished. Fifteen occupants escaped. J. D. Turner was terribly mangled and may die.

The following inmates of the hotel were injured: W. D. Pruitt, badly mangled; Dr. Turner, probably fatally crushed, M. G. Maus, bruised. The slightly injured are: D. C. Bell, K. U. Denton, Tom Victoris, Lewis Morris, Charles Brounell, Percy Cox, W. T. McClure and Fred. End his wife and two daughters and servant. Dr. Turner lay beneath the timbers until they burned in twain, releasing him. Mr. Denton escaped death by a second falling of walls, which released him. One man cut his throat when he found the flames consuming him. The relief train from Sherman made the time of a mile per minute. The cause of the calamity is uncertain. It is thought that an explosion of powder in Armstead's hardware store blew out the west walls, causing the entire building to fall. The adjoining buildings were destroyed. The amount of the loss is not yet known.

Sin's Many Masks.

BUFFALO, April 6.—The cities of Buffalo and Toronto are sharing a social and criminal sensation. A month ago a Toronto boarding house keeper, a widow of almost sixty, named Watts, received an answer to a matrimonial advertisement she had inserted in the newspapers, from a gentleman named Robertson, of Buffalo, to whom, after a brief correspondence, she was married, by the Rev. Dr. Stratton, in this city. The groom gave his age as seventy-eight. He said he was a millionaire. Under these circumstances the newly-married pair stayed at the house of the reverend gentleman who tied the knot. Several days after the new wedding, when the bride was returning to Toronto to close up her boarding-house, Robertson gave his wife as a wedding present a cheque for $100,000, payable at a Toronto bank. It took only a short time to ascertain that the cheque was worthless.

The old scoundrel, who knew that disclosures were imminent, resolved to take leave of his kind host. He borrowed Dr. Stratton's overcoat, took his gold-headed cane and went out, saying he would be back shortly. He never returned. The police traced him to Hamilton, Ont., where he was arrested. He had pawned Dr. Stratton's cane and overcoat, using the proceeds in a drunken debauch.

Champion of the Cue.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The closing game in the tournament of billiards to decide the world's championship at the balk line game was played this evening to an audience which literally packed the Central music hall to the doors. The players were Maurice Vignaux and Jacob Schaefer, the latter winning in one of the most brilliantly played games of the tournament, and thus securing the title of the world's champion. Below is the score:

Score—Schaefer 600, average 28 12-21, highest run 220; Vignaux 509, average 25 9-20, highest run 139. Time of game 2:35.

A President's Opinion.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 6.—W. Potter, president of the North Chicago rolling mill company, declared his belief that the Amalgamated association will accede to the concessions asked by the manufacturers, and says that they do not necessarily involve a reduction in wages; as if the selling price be above two and one-half cents per pound it means an advance. He states that the North Chicago mills will resume work either about the middle of May or the 1st of June.

News from Bismarck.

BISMARCK, D. T., April 8.—Prairie fires are raging south and east of this city.

Over 1,000 acres of wheat have been planted in this section during the past two days. East of this place there is yet some snow but it is disappearing rapidly.

Trains of from ten to fifteen cars arrive here daily on the Northern Pacific railroad filled with emigrants for the Missouri slope.

Big Purchase by a Syndicate.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The tract of land in Texas known as the "Pan Handle," comprising 3,000,000 acres, recently ceded to a syndicate in consideration of the erection by the company of a capitol building in Austin, to cost $1,500,000, has been sold to a London syndicate for $10,000,000. The syndicate has until April 15th to make the first payment.

Arrested on Suspicion.

LONDON, April 5.—Henry Dalton, who came from the United States about two weeks ago, was arrested to-night at the American exchange for supposed connection with the dynamite plots unearthed to day.

A Game of Tit for Tat.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—The Griswold mills at Darby having been employing children under 13 years of age in violation of law, Mr. James McGahey, a weaver living at that place, called the attention of the authorities to the matter and as a result twenty-five children were dismissed from the mill. In retaliation the operatives of the mill have joined in a movement to boycott the store of a relative of McGahey.

The Kiralfys' New Theatre.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Kiralfy Brothers have long desired a theatre of their own in this city adapted to the production of spectacular dramas. Their wish is about to be realized, as they have leased ground on Fourth avenue and Eighteenth street, and will begin to build a theatre with a frontage of 78 feet on Fourth avenue and a depth of 140 feet.

Herr Most Still at Large.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Herr Most spoke at a meeting of working men this afternoon in the Germania theatre. He advocated communism and said that the time was ripe for revolution, which he thought would soon sweep over Europe and America. He declared the czar would not be crowned, and approved the course of the Irish terrorists and dynamite fiends.

Big Fire in Indiana.

KENTLAND, April 5.—The business portion of this place was almost entirely destroyed by fire last night. Twenty firms were burned out. Loss $100,000, half of which is insured.

The Pennsylvania State College.

The brief vacation which preceded the closing College term for the present year occurred last week, and the term began on Monday, the students returning to the institution on Saturday.

Although the attendance of students at the College this year has not been on a par with that of some former years, the falling off in attendance was solely due to past misfortunes which the institution has met with, and not in the least to its present management, which is most efficient and successful and gives promise of grand results in the future.

President George Atherton has secured the love and respect of the students in a high degree, and they unite in admiration of his many excellent qualities. He is scholarly and accomplished and possesses great executive ability. Never before has the entire Faculty been in such perfect accord and agreed so unanimously in regard to the wisdom and discretion of their leader.

Without doubt the first term of the next school year to begin in the fall will show the result of this fine management in a large increase of the number of students and will be the most brilliant year the College has yet experienced.

An Important Change.

Dr. Thomas R. Hayes has opened an office in the residence on Allegheny street owned by Mrs. Peipher and recently occupied by Dr. Augustus Hibler opposite the law office of Beaver & Gephart. His numerous patients and all in need of his skilled professional services will find him there prior to his departure to Europe in June next. It is the Doctor's intention to associate with him as partner, in a few weeks, Dr. Geo. P. Rishel, a talented young physician who will next week graduate from the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Rishel was a student of Dr. Hayes during a period of four years. He is also a graduate of Pennsylvania State College and his very complete course at the University of Pennsylvania will fit him in a high degree for the important professional duties which his partner's extensive practice will devolve upon him.

—Mrs. N. K. Dare has associated with her in business Mrs. J. D. Whiteman of Philadelphia, well known to many of our citizens, and the firm hereafter will be known as Dare & Whiteman. Both ladies are now in the eastern cities buying their spring goods and will return in a few days with the largest stock of hats, bonnets and millinery goods ever brought to Bellefonte. They will also carry a large line of ladies' fancy goods, together with samples of dress goods from one of the largest New York houses.

—The M. E. Sociable Tuesday evening of last week was up to the standard if not superior to many such gatherings. The paper, read by its editor, S. D. Ray, Esq., was witty and excellent. A solo sang by Mrs. Stover was noticeable as was also a beautiful selection rendered by the choir assisted by Mr. James Gordon. An organ solo by Miss Nellie Kline elicited much favorable comment. Miss Beckie McGinley excelled herself in the force and expression with which she read a selection the title of which we forget. A very enjoyable dialogue by Miss Ella Williams and Miss Fannie Twitmire showed considerable skill and natural ability, while a beautiful song fairly "brought down the house," so sweetly were the solo parts rendered by those gifted little girls, Miss Katie Furey and Miss Lona Williams.

—Harry Teats & Co., grocers, are always glad to welcome customers.

—A fight occurred in an up-town bar room at a late hour on Saturday night by which one individual was considerably injured. In these fights we do not feel like inveighing against any particular party. The man who sells the whiskey and the man who drinks are equally blamable. We understand that in the instance mentioned the man who had been drinking and wanted more whiskey became abusive and the bar keeper ejected him with violence, the man's right leg being broken at the ankle. We would be pleased to see every bar room in town closed and the sooner the better, and when these institutions become a nuisance it is the duty of good citizens to rebel.

—You will never get a poor cigar of Harry Green. All that he sells are up to the standard.

—We read of the public schools in many places closing even this early in the year. It is a mistake to afford the children only such brief school terms and we are pleased to know that the Bellefonte school year will not end for about six weeks yet, or the latter part of May. Even that, however, is altogether too short, as the schools should be kept open ten months of the year.

CAST SCRAP IRON WANTED.—Will pay cash or exchange for hardware at H. K. Hicks' hardware and stove store. dawtf

The High Street Bridge.

The county commissioners have received eight bids toward the erection of the superstructure of the High street bridge across Spring creek. They were made by bridge builders in Pittsburg, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati, Ohio; and other cities. No decision will be made until they have been examined by Engineer Brugger, of Unionville. We understand that they range in price all the way from $60 to $120 per foot.

—I have now in stock about 15 monuments and at least 50 sets of tomb-stones, the largest and most complete stock of tomb-stones and monuments that was ever seen in this county, and I guarantee to sell them 15 per cent. less than any other firm in three counties combined. C. M. HEISLER, Marble and Granite Works.

—The trout season has opened, and the admirers of the "speckled beauties" are filled with ardor and affection.—Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin.

But, alas! not with trout.

—A perfect grocery store, excellently planned, is what the citizens say of Sechler's establishment.

—A walk down High street at any time this month will lead the eager purchaser to Sechler's grocery store, and if he never purchased there before he will be surprised at the superior quality of groceries which he will be able to buy. Try it and prove the truth of this oft-repeated assertion.

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall street, N. Y. 15 7 1y

THE members of the Wisconsin Legislature are likely to find that they did an extremely unpopular thing when they prohibited, under penalty of fine and imprisonment, the employment of children under fourteen years of age. It is no doubt a regrettable circumstance that parents should ever be compelled to put their children out to work so young, but unfortunately, even in this land of plenty, there are many families to which the proceeds of child labor are an important if not an indispensable item, and by these the new law will be bitterly resented. How extensive its operation is likely to be may be inferred from its effect in Milwaukee, in which city alone it is said that it will throw three thousand children out of employment. The proper action under such circumstances would seem to be to recompense parents for their pecuniary loss appointing a committee of investigation to determine whether they are entitledto any and if so how much.

THIS is the kind of weather in which the impulsive and imprudent person divests himself of his overcoat or of his heavy flannels,because he feels so uncomfortably warm,and is determined to accommodate himself to the meteorological variability of this extremely versatile season. The judicious and experienced man knows better than that. He knows that it is impossible to count upon the vagaries of American weather at this time of the year, and in order to guard against the danger of being caught by a frost with his flannels off and his overcoat at home, he submits with philosophic equanimity to the lesser inconvenience of being superfluously calorific.

THE war between Mapleson and Nilsson is still on, but as yet the Colonel has not challenged the nightingale to a duet with pistols or daggers.

THE decrease in the debt for the month of March was $9 344,826, which makes the reduction for the nine months of the present fiscal year $111,978,262. If the same average rate of payment is maintained during the three remaining months the reduction in the interest bearing debt for the fiscal year of 1883 will be very little less than that of last year, or not far from $150,000,000. As only about $25,000,000 of calls are outstanding, however, and no more are likely to be made, and at least $10,000,000 will probably not be presented for payment,the actual reduction will be about $126,000,000 for the year.

New R. R. Track Opened.

The new railroad track between the east end of Tyrone yard and Vail Station was opened on Wednesday, the 4th inst., by S. S. Blair, superintendent. Trains south and west use the west track as designated by Superintendent Blair and trains east and north use the east track as also designated by that gentleman. East bound trains are distinct from Tyrone and Clearfield railway trains and will go right t rough. West-bound and northbound trains will cross as usual at Vail This is a valuable piece of track and will frequently prevent delay of trains. The switches are under the control of the operator, W. E Hamer, a competent railroad man and first-class operator, and also Mr. Schooner, night operator.

—Stop at Sechler's store for your usual supply of groceries.

—It seems that a great convention including about two hundred delegates will meet in this place about the middle of May. Our popular townsman, D. S. Keller, Esq., a few days ago, received a communication from the Secretary of the State Constitutional Amendment Association inquiring if it will be agreeable to hold the State Convention in this place. Knowing the generous hospitality of the citizens of the town, the answer was in the affirmative and the Convention will in all probability assemble here. The exact date has not yet been fixed, but it is thought that the Executive Committee will appoint a date about one week previous to Decoration day—May 30.

—The rush of customers to Harry Teats & Co.'s grocery store is increasing.

Notice.

Persons wishing tomb stones should call at the Bellefonte Marble Works and not be deceived by persons who run around the country trying to put up a few in a year and know nothing about the business, and not having any marble in their yards to select from. Remember I will sell you tombstones and monuments at 15 per cent. less than to the parties who do not call at my place. Call and be convinced.

The Weather for the Week.

At 10 a.m. on Wednesday the weather was cloudy at Buffalo, Chicago and west of the Mississippi river. Clear at other points.

At 10 a. m. on Thursday rain was falling at New York and throughout the northeast and northwest as far as Milwaukee, Wis. All the wires on the Lake Shore route from Buffalo to Chicago are down.

At 10 a. m. on Saturday a heavy rain storm prevailed at New Orleans. The weather was cloudy throughout the United States with rain at Boston, New York and Buffalo.

At 10 a. m. on Monday the weather was reported generally clear all over the country.

News from the Colonists.

The following dispatch was received at this office on Friday morning, dated Chicago, Ill:

The Penn'a colony from your county, under leadership of J. A. Magee, enroute for Miles City, Montana, left Chicago via. the Chicago and Northeastern railroad at nine p. m, Wednesday night, and arrived safely at St. Paul about noon on Thursday. All are well and much pleased with their treatment. All of the promises made by P. C. Hammer, traveling agent of the Chicago and northwestern R. R., were fully carried out and they advise all of their friends who may be traveling west to take that road.

Amusements.

Manager Sourbeck expects to announce the date of Camilla Urso concert entertainment in a few days. The company is coming east from the West, and will probably reach Bellefonte within ten days, or so.

Other entertainments to follow are the Harkins' English Romance Company, April 24, and the Wilbur Opera Company, some time in June.

Two good companies have also been booked for the fall season, viz: Tony Denier's Humpty-Dumpty, November 16, and Hearne's "Hearts of Oak" Dramatic Company, December 18.

—The meeting of Republicans of the North ward,on Saturday evening, was a very unenthusiastic affair, and the attendance was small. The object was to nominate a member of council to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Robert McKnight. Messrs. James Harris and D. K. Tate were named for the nomination, Mr. Tate receiving a majority of votes, and he was therefore the candidate.

—The Northern Conference of the Central Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church will meet at Zion, this county, on Tuesday, the 17th April, to remain in session three days. The opening sermon of the Conference will be preached by Rev. S. E. Furst, of this place. Dr. Rhone is the lay delegate from the Bellefonte church.

—In the "G. A. R. Review," published on the 7th page, the name Sowland mentioned as a member of Post 90, Philipsburg, should read Gowland; in 272 Pine Grove, Will Post should be Will Port; in 261, Milesburg, James F. Weaver should have been included among the efficient members of the Post; and in 263, Unionville, Hales should read Halls.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Strikes and Strikers.

PHAILADELPHIA, April 2.—Eight hundred hands employed in the shoe factory of John Mundell & Co. held a meeting this afternoon to take action upon the proposition of the firm to make a reduction of ten per cent. in wages. It was decided to leave the matter to the arbitration committee of the shoe makers' branch of the Knights of Labor for a settlement.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 2.—Laborers on the Shamokin, Sunbury and Lewisburg railroad to the number of 500 have struck for an advance of 25 cents per day. They now receive 125. Both sides are firm.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Twelve hundred journeymen house painters struck to-day for an increase from $2.50 to $3 per day.

LYNCHBURG, Va., April 2.—The tobacco manufacturers met this afternoon to consider the proposition of the strikers to resume work at the modified prices, but rejected the proposition, discharged the conference committee and refused to treat further with the laboring association. White labor was introduced into two more factories today and the manufacturers have sent away for skilled operatives to train this class of laborers. The strikers number 1,200, and it is believed they are receiving outside assistance.

NEW HAVEN, April 2.—The employers have acceded to the demands of the bricklayers for $3.75 per day, with the understanding that in case the men work only nine hours on Saturdays they will lose one hour's pay. The men have agreed to this and will work only nine hours on Saturdays.

Strange Scene at a Funeral.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Rev. Jonathan Blanchard, president of Wheaton college, in Illinois, in preaching a funeral sermon here yesterday over the remains of a young man who in life had been a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Knights of Pythias and the Independent Order of Mechanics, made some remarks denunciatory of secret societies. A sister of the deceased, who was present in the church where the services were being held, became very much excited over the language of the preacher, especially for the reason that at the request of the family the societies of which her brother had been a member were conducting the funeral with society honors. She fainted and had to be carried from the church. Amid some excitement her husband asked the clergyman to discontinue his remarks. This the latter refused to do unless requested by the father of the deceased who had first asked him to officiate. The father of the dead man told him he had "better quit," when, gathering up his manuscript, he left the church. After some delay another clergyman was found to officiate and services were concluded without further interruption. The occurrence has caused some excitement among members of the societies assailed.

Spring Elections.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 3.—Young, republican, was elected mayor to-day. The democrats have a majority of the aldermen and supervisors.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The spring elections for town officers in towns in Queens and Suffolk counties, Long Island, were held to-day and resulted in a victory for the democrats.

MADISON, Wis., April 3.—The democrats elected their mayor and the rest of the ticket to-day.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 3.—The indications are that the entire democratic city ticket is elected by from 5,000 to 8,000 majority.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Returns from three-fourths of the city give Harrison for mayor 9,239 majority. The returns on other officers are very incomplete.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—Latest returns show that but three republicans, Eshelby, comptroller, and Caldwell, prosecuting attorney of the police court, and Moore, wharf register, are elected. The council on joint ballot stands 47 democrats to 38 republicans.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 3.—At the election yesterday the democrats elected their candidate for mayor, one member of common council, the borough clerk, assessor and collector.

A Sunday Murder in New York.

NEW YORK, April 1.—During an altercation at Elliott's grocery, No. 33 Sullivan street, early this morning, Peter Moore, 18 years old, and John Kerrigan, aged 19, stabbed Harry Grant, a negro, five times in the chest and back. Both Moore and Kerrigan were arrested. They say they acted in self-defence. The quarrel was over a dissolute negress of whom Grant is jealous. Grant's wounds are pronounced mortal.

Instantly Killed.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 3.—Charles Resh, aged 56 years, was killed today by falling off an elevator on which he was ascending to the fourth-story of the county hospital. The coroner's investigation revealed the fact that the elevator rope had been cut by some person unknown, with criminal intent.

Peter Cooper Dead.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Peter Cooper died at 3.30 o'clock this morning, aged 92 years of pneumonia, contracted on Saturday last from the exposure he had undergone while attending the meeting at Cooper institute.

[Peter Cooper was born in New York, February 12, 1791. His maternal grandfather, John Campbell, was an alderman of New York. His father was a lieutenant in the war of the revolution. This period of Peter Cooper's life was one of great anxiety and hard labor, as his father was not successful in his undertakings, and had a large family to provide for. He attended school only half of each day for a single year, and beyond the knowledge thus gained his acquisitions are entirely his own. At the age of 17 he was apprenticed to the trade of coachmaking, and served out his time so much to the satisfaction of his master, that the latter offered to set him up in business, which he declined.

While in Baltimore he built after his own designs the first locomotive engine constructed on this continent, and it was used successfully on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. In furtherance of his desire to help the poor the "Union for the Advancement of Science and Art," commonly called the "Cooper Institute," was erected in New York at the junction of Third and Fourth avenues, between Seventh and Eighth streets, covering the entire block, at a cost of over $650,000, to which Mr. Cooper has since added an endowment of $150,000 in cash.

He wrote much upon public affairs, and always in a manner that commanded the respect of his audience. It was only a few weeks ago that we acknowledged the receipt of a pamphlet written by him, in which the clearness of his intellect and the earnestness he displayed were essentially noteworthy. A riper sheaf has not been gathered in many years from among the ranks of our noted men than Peter Cooper.]

A Remarkable Dream.

TITUSVILLE, April 4.—The body of John Pierce, who was drowned on Sunday, February 4, at the time the Franklin street bridge, of this place, gave way during the recent disastrous floods, was found yesterday morning on the Watson flats about a mile and a half below this city and just opposite the old Pierce homestead, in Venango county. The remains of the unfortunate lad were found through a remarkable revelation. For several weeks the family had utterly despaired of ever discovering the body. All hope had been abandoned when Rev. Mr. Hoover, a Methodist clergyman, in Sunville, had a dream a few nights ago, in which he saw the spot where the body was to be found, and, although he had never seen the place in reality, the vision was so perfect that when he awoke he could not drive the dream from his mind. He visited the dead boy's father and described the place he had seen in the dream. He was confident that the remains could be found in the spot he described, which was familiar to Mr. Pierce. The clergyman and the dead lad's father visited it this morning, and there, sure enough, lying several rods from the bed of Oil Creek, the body was found, half imbedded in sand and mud at the foot of a clump of bushes, with the lower extremities protruding. The clothes were intact, and the boy's overcoat was firmly buttoned around his throat. A watch was found in a pocket in the vest, which had stopped at fifteen minutes of 4 o'clock, three hours after the accident in which the boy lost his life. The remains were taken to Titusville, from where he will be buried. Much excitement prevails over Rev. Hoover's revelation.

The Condition of the Queen.

LONDON, April 4.—The recovery of the Queen is less rapid than her physicians had reason to expect. While the injury to her knee is by no means serious, it is feared it may indirectly affect her accustomed good health, by causing her to lose her daily outdoor exercise, with which she has been in the habit of refreshing herself. Dr. Jenner, physician-in-ordinary to the Queen, directed that she take almost complete rest, as the best means of preventing swelling in the injured part and of reducing the pain. This course will, it is believed, soon reduce the slight inflammation, and give her majesty the full use of her limb.

A dispatch from Windsor Castle, dated at 2 o'clock this afternoon, says that the Queen's general health continues excellent, despite the precautionary safeguards as to exercise, which her physician has imposed; and, although not permitted to walk, yet she took a drive during the forenoon.

Beneath their Dignity to Discuss.

LONDON, April 3.—In the house of commons this afternoon Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice, under foreign secretary, in reply to Kennard, who questioned him with regard to certain strictures which appeared recently in a New York newspaper, on the manner in which the United States had dealt with the sum awarded by the Geneva congress for compensation of sufferers by depredations of confederate cruisers, said it was contrary to usage and inconsistent with the dignity of the house to base a discussion on a passage in a foreign newspaper destitute of official character and only representing the opinion of its own writers. He said the Alabama question was now only of historical importance and the government had no interest in the manner in which the American government disposed of the money.

Increasing its Value.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—When Mint Superintendent Snowden reads of the base uses to which his new five-cent nickel is subjected he frowns. The trouble increases. In addition to the grumbling in the city, telegrams from all over the country announce the arrest of parties for circulating the coin gilded so as to resemble a five dollar gold piece. The circus season has opened, and many an unwary countryman will get his eye teeth cut by the side show man and the fakirs. A man recently started from this city with five thousand of these gilded frauds, with which he intends to take in unsuspecting grangers.

Charles E. Barber, the engraver of the mint, said to-day: "The figure on the face of this coin was copied from no engraving or bust, and is a copy of no one's face. I engraved the design to represent the Goddess of Liberty. The fault with our present system of coinage is that there is no fixed style, and changes are constantly being made. There should be a uniform style for gold, silver, and all coins. Our pennies include the old cartwheel penny, the buzzard penny, and the present style with an Indian head. We have two three cent pieces. In five-cent pieces there are two styles of the old silver piece, the old nickel, the new nickel, and when the word cents is stamped across the face there will be five styles. The ten-cent piece has been changed but once. A wreath was substituted for the eagle. In the dollar coin we have the dollar of our daddies, the trade dollar, and the Bland dollar."

Cincinnati's Bloodthirsty Mayor.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—A sensation was created in the rooms of the Duckworth democratic club this morning by the effort of Mayor Means to shoot John Brady, the county jailer. Both are members of the club, and had spent the night at the rooms hearing the election returns. Early this morning the mayor, who had been drinking, made threats of going to assault Brady, who was up stairs. He went up stairs and friends got Brady down stairs. Means followed, when some men seized him, but he finally drew a revolver. Brady seeing this drew his pistol and demanded that Means be taken away. This was done and bloodshed was avoided. The men have not been on good terms for two years.

Want $4 a Day.

CHICAGO, April 1.—A short time ago the bricklayers here notified the bosses that after April 1 they would demand four dollars per day as the minimum rate for union men. The bosses subsequently met and refused the demand. Notice has been served that all members of the union will quit work to-morrow and remain on a strike until their demands are acceded to.

Dunn's Dastardly Deed.

CHICAGO, April 1.—A special despatch from Bloomington, Illinois, says: "Robert P. Dunn attempted yesterday to kill his family. He first shot and probably fatally wounded his wife. He next fired at but missed his son, a young man, and then attacked his daughter with a knife, but was overpowered by his son before he inflicted any injury on her."

Prohibitory Amendment Defeated.

BOSTON, Mass., April 3.—The senate to-day ordered to a third reading the resolution which had already passed the house providing for a bi-ennial election of state officers and bi-ennial sessions of the legislature.

In the house the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor was defeated by a vote of 115 to 83.

Bismarck's Birthday.

BERLIN, April 2.—The celebration yesterday of the anniversary of the birth of Prince Bismarck was an occasion of no little brilliancy. Military bands performed national and operatic selections before the residence of the prince.

Hardware Works Burned.

EASTON, Pa., April 1.—William Shimer Son & Co.'s hardware works, near Freemansburg, were destroyed by fire early this morning. Loss between $15,000 and $20,000; insurance, $8,000.

A STRANGE SYMPTOM.—Many men and women, apparently enjoying robust health and capable of enduring much hard labor without fatigue, can walk mile after mile without weariness; and yet, when they come to stand still, find themselves looking for a place to sit down the very first thing. Why is this? Reader, this is one of the sure symptoms of kidney disease. It should never be neglected. Take Hunt's Remedy at once.—Your life is in danger. Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, will save it.

The difference between a long and a short yarn is very well illustrated by the difference of one's feelings in holding a skein for one's grandmother or one's sweetheart.

Catarrh.—Relief in five minutes in every case; gratifying, wholesome relief beyond a money value. Cure begins from first application, and is rapid, radical and permanent. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Complete for $1.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE

A boy asked his father the meaning of tempus fugit. The old gentleman said he didn't know certain, but it was something about fly-time.

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us, seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by indigestion, constipation, dizziness, loss of appetite, coming up of the food, yellow skin, when for 75 cents we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by John Harris.

It was in a place where musicians most do congregate that one of the Saxon origin was lamenting the death of the master, Wagner. "Yes, it is very sad," said an American. 'But his company will go on all the same, that's one comfort." "Company? what company?" asked the Saxon. "Why, the drawing-room car company, you know." "But, my dear sir, it isn't the same man," explained the other; and he cannot for the life of him understand why they all laughed.

G. A. R. REVIEW.

A Brief Resume of the Work of a Year—Its Present Prosperity and Prospects.

At the encampment at Wilkesbarre Gen. E. S. Osborne, of that city, was elected commander for the ensuing year. He has efficient allies in A. A. G. Thomas I. Stewart and Harry Williams (formerly A. Q. M.) now Senior A. D. C. The headquarters are in Philadelphia. There are only three counties—Fulton, Sullivan and Pike—without Posts, and four large places—Meadville, Warren, Mechanicsburg and Sunbury. The latter city has a "Post" in process of organization. More than $40,000 has been expended for charity during the past year. The number of posts has increased since Wilkesbarre encampment from 309 to 322. No old soldier who is not yet a member should permit a week to pass without connecting himself with the organization.

Schuylkill and Centre counties have the same number of "Posts" and rank next to Bradford county, where the "Posts" are more numerous and flourishing than in any other section outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

No. 95, Bellefonte, is moving along in good order under the leadership of H. H. Benner, Commander; John I. Curtin, S. V. C; Jno. W. Weaver, J. V. C.; D. M. Glenn, the old reliable Qr. Master, and others of equal note in G. A. R. circles, but many comrades of prominence in 95 who could do so do not give that attention to the "Post" they should to make the meetings interesting as they should be. No. 95 is organizing a "Camp of S. of V." in connection with the order. A good camp can be established here.

No. 90, Philipsburg, having thrown off much old material, have taken new life, and under A. H. Smith, Geo. Parker, Sowland, Heimack and many other equally hard-working comrades will obtain the front rank and will keep it. This Post has a camp of "S. of V," in a flourishing condition, being the first in this section of the State. The son or sons of any soldier of the late war (whether the father is a member of the G. A. R. or not), and who is over the age of sixteen, is entitled and eligible to join the "S. of V."

No. 197, Lemont, is mustering a recruit nearly every night of meeting. Dr. Christ, Isaac Armstrong, John Myers, Chaplain Showers, Charles Cooke and many others are pushing along the great work in that section.

No. 272, Pine Grove, is almost the banner "Post" in the county. Their interest in the work has not abated for one minute. They are self-sustaining and have money on hand. The increase up to this time since July 28, 1882,—date of muster—is 150 per cent., and more applications for muster on hand. No Post in the county had more opposition at the start. Charley Smith, D. H. Weaver, D. W. Miller, Bob Brett, Will Post and other enthusiastic fellows of equal prominence are "booming things" up there.

No. 282, Centre Hall, is a most excellent "Post." The increase has been substantial and even rapid. They are sound in every way. W. P. Shoop, W. J. Thompson, George Boal, Chas. D. Runkle, Andy Gregg, Sam Crotzer, Will Stiver and other good fellows are head and front of the movement there.

No. 298, Rebersburg is getting along well, but being mustered December 27, 1882, is quite young in the work. A large Post cannot be expected there, but they are good and will hold on. Hon. Henry Meyer, S. M. Spangler, Jno. A. Miller and Rev. Mr. Landis are some of the officers.

No. 262, Howard, is doing well. A little more support (from soldiers who live near there) to 262 and not so much to Posts at a great distance from them that do not need their support, either morally or financially, and with whom they can seldom meet—would be more like the thing. Ed. Barry, H. C. Holter, William Roush, William Montgomery, S. H. Bennison and other good soldiers are at the head of affairs in 262.

No. 302, Eagleville, is the very youngest of the Post family in Centre—mustered January 10, 1883. The increase in interest and numbers is so far not behind any Post in the county. The bringing of the order to the very doors of the soldiers scattered around in various parts of the county has given a great impetus to the organization and has enabled hundreds to share its objects and benefits, who otherwise would be debarred from such privileges. Wm. Singer, Jas. Quigley, T. A. Snyder, McCloskey, Eaton, Kitchen, and others are working manfully in the cause in Eagleville and vicinity. It seems as though the "S. of Veterans" could be organized in Eagleville, Howard or Unionville. It would be worth looking up.

No. 261, Milesburg, is in a flourishing condition. The increase has been since muster, July 17, 1882, 116 per cent. A relief fund has been established and used when required. The Post is self-sustaining, has money in the hands of the Qr. Master, a beautiful new room fitted up by Comrade Wetzler in his building, a continued and increasing interest in the meetings, and average attendance of 60 per cent., 90 per cent. of members in uniform. Post numbers 63 with 23 applications for muster. If all join who live in Milesburg and three and a half miles east, north or northwest of same will make 135 members, or the largest Post in the county. It is the only post in this section using the "Sciopticon" and muster plates at musters, mustering from one to four every night. Have had two sermons preached to them and will have another on third Sunday in April. Met with quite a loss in the departure of chaplain Rev. J. A. Woodcock who was sent by the M. E. Conference to Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co. Mr. Charles Else elected to fill unexpired term. Members all work in harmony for the good of the organization. A one-armed veteran, Mr. James McMullen, is janitor. Are busy effecting an organization of "S. of V.," of which a large camp can be formed in Milesburg. Austin Curtin, W. H. Musser, Joseph A. Green, Sam'l Wyland, Thos. Taylor, James Krebs, A. C. Moore and many others are pushing along the car of the G. A. R. in Milesburg and vicinity. A "Ladies Auxiliary" is about being formed.

No. 263, Unionville, is flourishing. They have had many musters and have quite a number of applications. A great loss was sustained by the Post and by the community in the departure of Dr. W. C. VanValin for Dakota. (If he does not stay longer than Rash Williams of 95 did in Montana his loss will soon be repaired). The Post has a beautiful, well-furnished room in the "Leathers" building. St. Clair, Dr. Russel, the Hales, the Alexanders, L. B. Bathurst and other good and worthy comrades are at the head of affairs in 263.

No 268, Snow Shoe, is only in fair condition. There should be an awakening. The material is good and plenty of it. Money is not lacking. The Post is fourth in members in the county. It is self sustaining and need not remain in any "hole" with such men as Shirer, Howard, Shannon, Uzzle, Yeager, Clark, Schenk and Gunsanllus to manage the affairs. Shake off your slumber and some of the weight that is holding you down. Come out and take your place in the front rank where you belong.

Echoes from Council.

The committees appointed at the meeting of council at 10 o'clock on Monday morning of last week were as follows:

Finance Committee—C. T. Gerberich, F. W. Crider and Henry Walkey.

Water Committee—William Shortlidge, David Bartley and Joseph Ceaders.

Street Committee—F. W. Crider, C. T. Gerberich and David Bartley.

Fire and Police Committee—David Bartley, William Shortlidge and Robert McKnight.

Market Committee—Henry Walkey, Richard McCafferty and F. W. Crider.

Nuisance Committee—Joseph Ceaders, William Shortlidge and Robert McKnight.

The clerk of council read a statement of expenses of council of 1882-83, of which we give the following synopsis:

The usual meeting of council was held in the evening, all the members being present. The election of a superintendent and engineer of water works was again brought up and Mr. Bateman was elected by a vote of 5 to 4. The resignation of Mr. Robert McKnight was accepted, and the Chief Burgess notified of the vacancy in the North ward.

—The fire at Jersey Shore on the 2d inst. was not so destructive as we at first supposed. Five large three story brick buildings, one three-story frame building and four barns were consumed. The Gamble House, the Calvert residence, the Jersey Shore Bank and Nice's carriage factory, though damaged, were saved. The total loss, which is divided among about twenty different parties, will reach $75,000; insurance $43,000.

A War-Whoop from Romola.

ROMOLA, April 2, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: Yes, indeed, we can talk railroad now, too. The engineers will be along here in about a week. Instead of going down the south fork of Beech Creek, as was stated in last week's L. H. Journal, they are coming right down the south fork of Marsh Creek. Well, who would have thought of such a thing? It takes us by surprise. But we long have thought that a cheaper and shorter route to the coal fields lying immediately west of us could not be found. We say with the biggest kind of a "Yes"; Let it come; it will waken us up. The mineral interests of Marsh Creek valley will then be developed and not until we have the advantages of railroad communication.

Two new barns will be built in this township this summer—one by Messrs. William and Fred Robb and one by Mr. Peter Robb.

Moving has been the chief business in this neighborhood for the last week.

Mr. Peter Robb will soon move to his Bald Eagle farm.

The Quay schools will not close until the middle of May.

Philipsburg Paragraphs.

A larger number and better tenant houses are greatly desired.

The "Shale Sisters" concert was one of the most successful entertainments of the season.

Proprietor J. A. McOmber will open the Potter House to the public on Thursday, April 5.

Philipsburg contains two of the happiest persons in creation—Mr. and Mrs. George Wythes. No wonder, for it was only recently that he (George Wythes) and she (Mattie Allport) pledged to each other eternal affection at the matrimonial altar.

The Philipsburg Male Harmonic Club recently testified to their musical excellence by a grand concert which was highly appreciated.

James G. Wighaman, who has been a resident of Philipsburg during the past sixteen years, died on Sunday morning, March 25. His illness dates from a year or more previous to his death.

Fire at Jersey Shore.

News was received in this place on Tuesday morning of last week that what proved to be a very destructive fire raged at Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, the previous night. Two squares were swept away by the flames. Among the buildings destroyed was the telegraph office. The fire departments of Williamsport and Lock Haven were telegraphed for and rendered valuable assistance.

Mr. Boyd C. Packer, who came up from Lock Haven on the early train next morning, said that the information received in that place at 2 o'clock a. m. was to the effect that the fire had burned from the Gamble house along both sides of the main street, a distance of two squares, and that the assistance of the fire department was needed.

LATER—The Post Office building was among the structures destroyed in the great conflagration. It is the worst fire that ever occurred in Jersey Shore.

—A communication from Williamsport to the Philadelphia Times records the name of William Emery, of the Nail Works as a member of the Brookside club, the object of which is to protect the trout in Mosquito creek, near Williamsport, from the depredations of miscellaneous anglers and to increase the number of "speckled beauties" in said stream by proper means. The other members are Conrad Shearer, R. C. Reading, Frank Reading, R. M. Foresman, E. R. Payne, H. C. McCormick, A. C. Parsons and R. R. Remington. The club owns a charming cottage on the bank of the creek. Near it is a sulphur spring and a miniature cataract called the "Falls of the Dancing Dewdrops." The members of the club have a delightful time whenever they visit the cottage.

—The funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Kate P. Dale, wife of Mr. A. W. Dale, who resides near Lemont, occurred on Sunday morning, the 1st inst., and was one of the most universal and impressive testimonials of popular sympathy and regard that ever took place in that section. Preparatory services were held at the house consisting of singing a few hymns and a prayer offered by Rev. Dr. Hamill, of the Presbyterian church. Appropriate services were afterwards held at the Lutheran church, of which deceased was a member. Rev. George Diven, the pastor, preached an eloquent and impressive discourse and Rev. S. E. Furst, of this place, made a brief address.

—The jewelry store at Philipsburg owned by Mr. George Naugle was closed on Monday, the 2d, by creditors. The indebtedness is only about $1200.

Every Tuesday.

The public are led to believe by certain railroads that low rate tickets will be sold and special trains run to the West "every Tuesday." This is calculated to deceive parties contemplating a trip West, as by the Pennsylvania Railroad you can go any day in the week on fast express trains and at just as low rate as by any other route on Tuesday. It is a well known fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route between the East and the Great West. Parties contemplating a trip to Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, New Mexico, Dakota or any of the Western States or Territories would consult their own interest by calling on the nearest agent of this company for maps, time tables, etc., where they will receive full information; or by writing to Thos. E. Watt, Passenger Agent Western Dist., No. 110 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburg.

Information Wanted.

The Altoona Tribune wants notice given of the fact that Isaac Switzer, a Polish Jew pack peddler, left his home in that city five months ago and has not been heard from since a few days after his departure. Then he was traveling in Clearfield and Centre counties, and had been in Bellefonte and Snow Shoe. He talks English imperfectly, is about five feet ten inches tall, heavy built, and wore no beard, and is about 24 years of age. His wife and one child live on Sixteenth street and Ninth Avenue. Any information concerning him will be thankfully received by his distressed wife.

Sneezed the Bullet Out.

We are informed that Mr. Al. W. Ralston, the attempted suicide of Pine Grove Mills, on the 2d inst., succeeded in relieving himself of the bullet which is said to have been in his head ever since his rash attempt to take his life. In one of the facial contortions and explosions ordinarily denominated a sneeze the bullet came rolling out from his olfactor. He is daily gaining in health and strength and there is a possibility that he may recover, which we hope will be the case.

—A few days ago Mrs. David Glenn, of this place, was summoned to Boalsburg by the severe illness of her aged mother, Mrs. Raimey, who lives in that place. If Mrs. Raimey survives until next July she will be 89 years of age, but at latest accounts her condition was such that is feared she will not recover, although we hope to hear more encouraging news soon.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, while sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and Hall & Ruckel, New York. 14 24 1y

—Another $10,000 of county debt was paid off by the commissioners a few days ago. At this rate the people of the county will soon be richly repaid for their good sense in electing capable commissioners.

has just received another lot of small Stem Winding Watches in Silver and Nickel, just the thing to make a boy happy, as it's the height of any boy's ambition to carry a Watch. These are reliable and serviceable, and are not expensive.

Also some more of those little bits of Watches which are so fashionable among the girls. These are much worn in other places and are considered just the thing.

A large line of Children's sets of Knife, Fork and Spoon with and without cases in Extra and Triple Plate. They are decidedly elegant goods; much more so than at any other season. A very few dozen of the Genuine Rogers' Triple-Plated Knives. They are as cheap as the imitation and worth twice the price of any other knife offered

A Gold Headed Cane would likely be just the thing you are looking for; they are useful, ornamental and always appreciated.

Gold Thimbles from the lowest in price to the most elegant. They are always just the thing and last a lifetime, and you can make no mistake

See the Castors and Cake Baskets.

I would like to show you my leading Tea Set—cheap and just the thing for actual use, Copper Bottom, and can be set on the stove and used the same as Britannia or tinware, and they come very little higher than a common unplated set.

Some people thought it foolish to bring a stock of Fine Diamonds to Bellefonte, but they will find considerably more Diamonds worn here after the holidays than before.

Your attention is particularly called to Japanese wares. They are genuine goods made in Japan and not in Jersey. They must be closed out this week as I have no room to keep them over. They are all below the cost of importation and some of them are given away for nothing.

Local Department.

—Clean up the streets.

—Spring is two weeks old.

—The roads are drying finely.

—A few "flittings" are yet visible.

—Saturday night was exceedingly lively. So they all say.

—Huntingdon Presbytery met at Mifflintown on Tuesday.

—It is said that Spring Mills house has been rented to a Mr. Bibby.

—Thursday afternoon was so warm that fires were almost unnecessary.

—The New York Herald was again issued on Sunday with 32 immense pages.

—Peter McMahon has the reputation of being the champion lamplighter.

—The Union church near Farmers Mills is to be remodeled. David Lose has the contract for $931.

—A large congregation attended the Communion service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

—The Ladies Aid Society of the Episcopal church met on Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Brew.

—That enormous sign suspended across Allegheny street on Saturday afternoon attracted everybody's attention.

—A reception to the glass and iron workers is on the tapis in connection with the future appointments of the Y. M. C. A.

—A monthly business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held at eight o'clock on Friday evening, immediately after the devotional exercises.

—The thirteen inmates of Fort Dunkle are a jovial company as was abundantly proved by fifteen minutes spent in their society on Friday at noon.

—The Y. M. C. A. is discussing the possibility of erecting a building for their own exclusive use. The propriety of such an enterprise has long been admitted.

—There is a very interesting strike now in progress in Lock Haven. It is done by the new town clock and does not occasion the inconvenience incident to workingmen's strikes.

—Henry Brungart is no longer a citizen of Rebersburg, but has removed to New Haven, Fayette county, Pa. Wherefore did he go to Dukes' county?

—Among the recent "flittings" from this county the Centre Hall Reporter mentions Jonathan From, who moved to Ohio; Aaron Durst to Freeport, Ill. and John G. Emerick to Karthouse, Pa.

—Henry Metzgar, a nephew of Mrs. Adolph Miller of Millheim, met with a terrible accident a few days ago, while employed on a western railroad. Both of his legs were so seriously injured that amputation was necessary.

—The telephone line is shortly to be extended to State College, taking in Lemont and all intermediate stations on the way. This will be a great advantage to people in this place and of inestimable benefit to the College.

—Arthur Kerlin, son of A. S. Kerlin, late of near Centre Hill, met with a serious accident near Tyrone a few days ago. He was knocked down and his leg run over by the cars as a result of which the injured member has since been amputated. He is doing as well as can be expected.

—The fence surrounding the opening where the High street bridge stood was blown down by the wind for the second time on Thursday afternoon. Street Commissioner Shaughensey repaired it and thinks that it is now strong enough to stand even a hurricane.

—All sons of soldiers in this vicinity were invited to meet on Saturday evening in the hall of Gregg Post, G. A. R., in Humes' block, for the purpose of perfecting the organization of a branch of the "Sons of Veterans." Sons of honorably discharged soldiers or of those who died in the service, whether their fathers are or ever were connected with the G. A. R. or not, are eligible.

—It is high time to take some action, pro or con, in regard to a curb market. Many persons in town and thoughout the county are anxious for the opening of such a market for the summer season and as the borough council is now organized for a vigorous campaign of civil service reform it would be well for them to invite those who have products for sale to meet on the court house curb for that purpose some fine April morning A. D., 1883.

JAIL BIRDS FOILED.

Excitement at Fort Dunkle Last Evening—An Attempt to Escape Prevented—Important Discovery.

Excitement prevailed at the jail on Thursday night and the result showed that there was reason for it, as it proved to be the culminating time for a long-planned scheme to escape on the part of the thirteen prisoners confined in that institution.

When, on the 25th of February, the three men—who gave their names as Chambers, Shoemaker and Swayne—were arrested by Constable George Lucas at Unionville for the burglary of the store of Lucas Brothers at Howard their actions awakened suspicion that they were more than ordinary burglars—in fact, it was believed that they were members of an organized band of professionals. D. H. Hastings, Esq., was engaged as special counsel to aid District Attorney Heinle in their prosecution and the two gentlemen at once put their wits to work to ferret out the character of these Howard burglars to their deepest depths and were rewarded with grand success.

To effectually accomplish this letters received by these prisoners were intercepted. Two of them proved valuable—one especially that alluded to a box of tools which would be sent to them from Philadelphia. In due course of time the box arrived per Adams Express Company, but the tools did not reach the prisoners. It was also believed that money and men would be sent to this place to secure if possible the release of the prisoners. It is known that an individual sailing under the cognomen of "Patsy" arrived in town one day and spent several hours loafing in a certain store on Bishop street. Seeing a verdant young man from Fillmore he strolled up to him and inquired if he had ever been in the jail, receiving a negative answer. After much persuasion and several refusals "Patsy" persuaded the country youth to accompany him to the jail, promising him $5 for doing so. On arriving at the jail the rural youth acted as spokesman, "Patsy" also affecting to be fresh from the country. Although the Sheriff is very cautious about admitting visitors these persons were allowed to enter and it was noticed that "Patsy" held quite an extended conversation with one of the three burglars.

We have not time nor space to give the details of this investigation, but will pass on to the events of last night.

Mr. John Dunkle, the keeper, to make security more secure, has recently engaged the service of Chief of Police Henry Montgomery to visit the jail at night and see that all is right. Thursday night being one of the dark, rainy sort, it was believed that it would be seized upon by the prisoners for any outbreak which they might have been contemplating. Accordingly between 8 and 9 o'clock Captain Montgomery, District Attorney Heinle, Special Counsel Hastings, and one of the representatives of a Dayton, Ohio, bridge building firm, repaired to the jail to keep watch and ward with Mr. John Dunkle.

All of the party were armed except the District Attorney, who like David of old, reposed his trust in some rocks which he carried in a sling.

About 9 o'clock the prisoners seemed to grow peculiarly merry and jovial. They sang songs and shouted, the particular burden of their musical efforts being something about "Across the Broad River." The party outside waited and listened and so confident were they that this unaccountable hilarity was only to cover up some nefarious work in progress that they decided to follow District Attorney Heinle's wise suggestion to rush in and overpower the prisoners. This they did, meeting but slight opposition. After the prisoners were placed in their cells it was discovered that a hole had been sawed in the floor at the left of the entrance three feet in length and large enough for a large man to pass through. One board had been torn out and the hole was about in the shape given in cut.

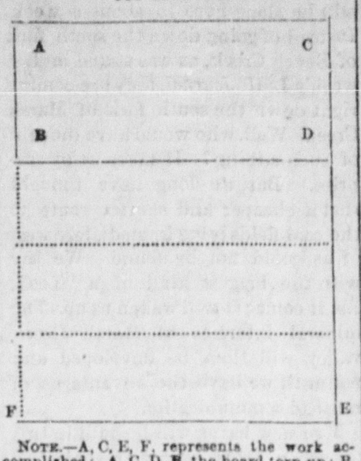
Thus it will be perceived that all was in preparation for entrance into the cellar, thence to the kitchen and then freedom. If the thirteen men had been permitted to gain even the outer part of the jail it might have been difficult to stop them.

It was found that still another hole had been made through the stone wall in the cell of Chambers, one of the Howard burglars, from which it was necessary to remove only one more stone to make it large enough for egress.

The saw was probably furnished them by—somebody, whose identity is yet to be discovered.

All the gentlemen who assisted to foil this desperate effort to escape deserve great credit, especially Mr. John Dunkle who entered so willingly into the arrangements and plans of the prosecuting attorneys.

CUT OF HOLE.



NOTE.—A, C, E, F, represents the work accomplished; A, C, D, B the board torn up; B, D, E, F, represents all that was yet to be done (tearing up the boards) to complete the aperature.

HOME TALENT.

A Gifted and Artistic Family and the Remarkable Enterprise they Have in Prospect.

We have heard many words of praise in reference to the prospective opera which Mr. John Moore and his artistic family have in process of preparation, and the desire to learn more particularly about it induced us to visit his photograph gallery last Friday afternoon. The gallery is really a studio in which Mr. Moore and his three talented children give expression to their artistic taste in the preparation of a beautiful opera which they may some day represent to the public. We do not know that another instance of such universal genius as is possessed by this family can be found. Mr. Moore is a gentleman of perhaps forty years; his eldest child, Charley, is 11 years and his two younger children, Bernice and Aurora, are aged 9 and 7 years, respectively.

Over a year ago Mr. Moore and his three children, who have remarkable musical abilities, both natural and acquired, encountered a very pretty dramatization of the nursery tale known as "The Frog's Bride." This they committed to memory and enacted the several characters. Then they interspersed numerous pretty and appropriate songs, music and words of their own composing, in the dialogue, converting it into a beautiful opera. Mr. Moore gave the opera the title of "The Golden Ball," and conceived the idea of painting scenery and purchasing costumes that would set off the ingenious composition to advantage.

He began this work about a year ago and has now almost completed it to his satisfaction. This has cost him many hours of thought, labor and research. He has given his personal attention to the training of his children; he is now at work upon the third and last scene to be used in connection with the opera, all of which have been made to glow in color and beauty under the delicate manipulation of his artistic brush; he has searched through the delicate fabrics exposed to sale in the large cities in quest of the proper material of which to make the costumes, which are certainly wonderful creations of genius. In them color is beautfully harmonized. They are of silk, velvet, fur and lace all of the finest texture. Their preparation has cost hundreds of dollars in money as well as much patient toil, and they are unrivaled in beauty and elegance by any similar creations for such purposes. One of a combination of blue and canary yellow elaborately trimmed with white lace is particularly rich and splendid.

We saw only one of the three immense canvases, the others being finished and laid carefully away, and although Mr. Moore described them to us and showed us representations of them in miniature we shall not attempt to produce pencil pictures of them.

Mr. Moore cannot tell exactly when, how or where he and his family will produce this delightful opera.

That Mr. Moore's children have remarkable natural abilities is universally acknowledged. Their acting shows spirit and grace and there is every reason to believe that the operetta will be an artistic success.

—An incident illustrating the bewildering effects of imbibing too much fire water, occurred up town a few evenings since. A stranger, evidently a lumberman, entered a store, with unsteady step, and after glancing up and down the apartment, sidled up to a couple of bundles on the counter. He examined them critically, bobbed his head from left to right, then proceeded to gather them up, remarking: "Been hunting these gosh blamed things for three hours (hic). Why in —— (hic) didn't you tell me? Been by here twenty times (hic). Guess I'm d-d-drunk (hic)!" The proprietor of the store thought so, too, and had no doubt of it when the fellow attempted to walk through a window in mistake for the door. It seems that the befuddled individual had purchased some articles at a clothing house in the afternoon and left them at the latter store until he should call for them, but an overdose of barley juice had interfered seriously with his intentions, and kept him tramping over town for three hours in search of his goods. Men who are liable to get into such scrapes as this should refrain from "bracing up" on any thing stronger than lime water.

In Memory of Samuel H. Stover.

At Boalsburg, Centre county, Pa., March 8, 1883, after an illness of two weeks, Samuel H. Stover, aged 70 years, 7 months and 21 days.

The subject of the above notice was born in Aaronsburg, Centre Co., July 13, 1812, and had been a resident of his native county up to his death. He was a member of the Lutheran church from his youth. Engaged in the mercantile business at Boalsburg the last seventeen years of his life. His uniform Christian courtesy and brotherly kindness have secured for him the confidence and affectionate regard of his fellow men. His maxim was never to keep or sell any article for anything else than what it proved to be.

His benevolence by his contributions in aid of all worthy purposes and enterprises outstriped his ability.

He was a friend of the oppressed and adviser of the poor. He sided with the weak and with a willing hand aided them in their sufferings. His counsels were characterized with forecasting judgment and prudence. Integrity and honesty were the guiding stars of his course, in the discharge of all his personal and official duties.

The chief characteristic of his many beautiful traits was his earnestness and zeal he manifested in advocating the merits of all useful industries which he thought would redound to the welfare of his fellow-countrymen.

In his love for and devotion to the church of his choice, he exemplified that his was a piety that sprang from a conviction of duty and principle, and in his last hours when his voice could no longer be heard above a whisper he continued in earnest devotion to the Great Inspirer of his hopes. Then mourn not death, 'tis but a step that leads to something higher. J. B. K.

—Mr. Joseph Belford, the very efficient instructor of what is becoming an excellent select school, delivered a fine lecture to his pupils last Friday afternoon on the subject of "Climate and how to determine Longitude." Mr. Belford's abilities as a lecturer are well known and the lecture on Friday afternoon was on a par with what would naturally be expected from him. A few visitors were present who expressed their delight with the lecture in unqualified terms; had the fact been generally known that the lecture was to be delivered the attendance of visitors would have been much larger. We believe that this was only one of a series of lectures with which he will entertain his pupils on Friday afternoons. His school is growing in numbers and the progress of the pupils is gratifying.

Mrs. Richard Morgan's Death.

Great is the company of them that mourn the death of Mrs. Richard Morgan, which occurred on Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Sincere and deep-felt are the feelings of sorrow. Abundant is the consolation that life did not become extinct, but has only entered upon a fresher and more joyous existence.

The deceased was about 45 years of age. She had lived in this vicinity since she was 17 years of age, coming to this country from Ireland.

A devoted husband and five children are sorrowing under this sudden and severe affliction. There were six children in all, but one went before her to welcome her to the "many mansions," "Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted."

A Lady Falls Down Stairs.

Mrs. Scanlon, wife of Mr. Patrick Scanlon, who lives in the vicinity of Humes' Mill, near Boiling Springs, met with a painful accident about 3 o'clock Saturday morning. She had risen at that hour to attend to the wants of a son who was ill. In returning through the dark hallway she went in the wrong direction and was precipitated down a flight of stairs. She is a stout lady and fell quite heavily, breaking both of her forearms near the wrist. Dr. George Harris was called and found that the fracture of the left wrist was the most serious, both bones being broken, while in her right wrist only one bone was broken. Though painful, her injuries are not dangerous, and her recovery is only a question of time.

—It is rumored that there will be another resignation from council, this time from West ward. As the gentleman is one of the most efficient and capable members of that body we hope he will not resign.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. John Ray, formerly of this place and now of Lewisburg, is in town and will make frequent visits here during the coming summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Wistar Morris, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Charles Wood, of Albany, were recently guests at the residence of Evan Blanchard, Esq., on Linn street.

Miss Bertie Alexander, daughter of ex-Senator C. T. Alexander, returned home on Wednesday from a long and enjoyable visit among friends in the South.

Mr. R. M. Sebring, of Valentines' Store Company, "Limited," returned on Tuesday evening of last week after a week spent in New York selecting an attractive assortment of goods for the new firm.

Mr. and Mrs. Wistar Morris and daughter, of Philadelphia, departed on Thursday after a very brief visit which was only intended as a farewell to their friends here before their trip around the world, upon which they will start this month.

Charles Schroeder, Esq., departed on Friday for Reading, where he will engage in the practice of law. He is a promising young man and we regret his departure from our midst, but fair Fortune wooes him in that direction, where we hope he will prosper.

Mr. Campbell, the efficient telephone inspector of this place severed his connection with the Telephone Company on Saturday evening and departed for his home in Williamsport on Monday. His place will be filled by Mr. Edmund Rankin, who considers that he can climb a greased pole as skillfully as the next man.

Dr. J. D. Geissinger, our handsome dental friend, has removed his operating room and business headquarters into the neat frame structure, No. 40, North Allegheny street, formerly occupied by Hon. John B. Linn as a law office. At this place the Doctor's numerous friends and patrons will always find him prepared to give attention to business or to social relaxation.

Col. Lew Wagner, of Philadelphia, made this office a pleasant call Saturday morning accompanied by Mr. Walter Bayard, who was showing the gentleman the sights of the mountain city. Mr. Wagner was here for purpose of organizing the sons of veteran soldiers in the county into an order to be known as Camp Breeze, of which notice will be found in another place.

Mr. Hayes Schroyer, formerly the very efficient foreman of this office and now a prosperous employe of Adams Express Company at Lancaster, Pa., arrived in town on Saturday evening to visit his aged parents in Bellefonte. Always the personification of health, he has increased measurably in avoirdupois since his former visit home. He is enthusiastically pleased with his present position and location and nothing less than a bank presidency will induce him to return permanently to Bellefonte. Ah, well, it's refreshing to know that there are some printers who fall heir to Fortune's favors.

—The Society of Friends of this place on Saturday received a visit from some of the prominent ministers of their church located at Baltimore. Among them were Dr. Thomas and wife, who are well known here. A sermon was delivered during the usual meeting held in the Friends' meeting house on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The sermons delivered by the ministers of this Society are usually full of the true spirit and power of the Gospel and prove to be very strengthening and refreshing to Christians. A public meeting was held on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Humes' Hall, which were conducted by the assembled ministers, and to which the public generally were cordially invited.

Died.

WISE.—On the 21st of March, in Sugar Valley, Green township, Clinton county, Henry Wise, aged 87 years and 21 days.

The deceased was born in Haines township, this county, on the 29th of February, 1796. He continued to reside in this county until 1842 when he moved to Clinton county. He was the father of nine children, three of whom preceded him to the "better land" and six still survive, having reached years of maturity. Mr. David Wise, a well-known citizen of Zion, this county, is a son. The deceased lived and died a Christian. He was connected with the Evangelical branch of the church militant. His death was a triumph of faith and his last words were "Jesus, come and take me home."

—The late Mrs. Richard Morgan was a communicant member of the P. E. church of this place and the Service for the Burial of the Dead was said over her remains in the church at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, a very large congregation gathering to show honor to her memory and to commingle their sympathy with the deep grief of the sorrowing family. All the ceremonies were exceedingly solemn and impressive, the officiating minister, Rev. Mr. Hewitt, closing the services in the church with lessons drawn from the circumstance of Mrs. Morgan's sudden decease and words of sympathy for the family.

—It is the universal and accepted opinion that this is "gentle Spring."
